First Round of Flu Said at Peak in U. S.

Woman Blind 18 Years Sees With New Electronic Eye

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—"Oh, I can see the light."

It was in these words that a woman blind for 18 years described her reaction to a new electronic device, her surgeons said.

The woman, Betty Corstorphine, 35, underwent a series of tests in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Los Angeles, last month using a photoelectric cell connected to wires in her brain.

"I saw flashes, at one time a bright flash like an electric light bulb, and at another time a grayness as though a light had just gone out," she said.

Dr. John C. Button said the test showed that brain cells did not atrophy like unused muscle cells but could be stimulated.

Saying that the test "opens the door to the possibilities of electronic vision," he predicted that with adequate funds medical science could refine the apparatus so that within five years almost all blind people could "see" by means of electrical stimulus of the vision centers.

"Eventually," he said, "I'm sure we'll get real sight."

Button, a 46-year-old neurologist who lives in nearby Maplewood, described the device that may eventually be developed as "something like a radarscope or television set."

Miss Corstorphine, who volunteered for the tests begun last Oct. 28, has been blind since 1939 because of the pressure of an inoperable, benign tumor on her optic nerve.

Button said wires about half the thickness of a human hair were passed through drilled holes into Miss Corstorphine's brain.

They were then pushed about two inches into the back of the brain to the centers of vision.

The wires were attached to a transistor amplifier which, in turn was connected to a small photoelectric cell. The theory was that the photoelectric cell would pick up light and convert it into a mild electric charge, thereby stimulating the brain.

Miss Corstorphine was given the cell and told to point it about a partially darkened room. As the cell was pointed toward lights placed about the room, Miss Corstorphine said she received flashes of light.

In further tests, Button said, she could pick up flashes from lights as dim as a 40-watt bulb.

The device, he said, can work on any blindness except that caused by injury to the center of vision deep in the brain. "And," he added, "there aren't many of them."

Some Medics Warning of 2nd Session

Disease on West Coast Increasing; Ohio Health Chief Gives Cafe Tips

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U. S. Public Health Service said today there are indications the first round of the Asian influenza epidemic probably has reached its peak in all parts of the nation except the Pacific coast states.

But many health authorities have advanced the opinion that a "second round" of the disease is coming. They have said this one may hit mainly adults; the first seemed to touch more younger persons.

Japan already is suffering under a second round of what has been identified as Asian Flu. The number of persons afflicted is reported to be greater than during the "first round."

Many American medical experts have stressed that vaccine against Asian Flu should be secured.

The number of deaths in the U. S. from influenza and pneumonia in 108 cities dropped during the week ended Nov. 16 to 782. This was 13 per cent below the number in the preceding week.

ALSO, THE number of deaths in 114 cities from all causes last week was down 3 per cent from the preceding week, to a total of 12,222.

The decreases in deaths occurred in all geographic divisions of the nation except the Pacific states.

The weekly summary said there were 780,000 new cases reported or estimated by 36 states for the week ended Nov. 16, compared with 1,100,000 by 38 states in the week ended Nov. 9. This pushed to at least 9,130,000 the estimated total of Asian flu cases since early June, based on incomplete reports.

Meanwhile, Dr. Ralph E. Dwork, Ohio's health director, today outlined a six-point program he wants eating-place operators to follow to combat a possible spread of Asian Flu.

Dr. Dwork said the epidemic appears to be leveling off but warned there could be a second wave of Asian Flu in Ohio.

He called on eating-place operators to use special precautions in handling of food and dishes and to see that all employes watch their personal hygiene.

The doctor wants all persons who handle food to be told again how they can handle soiled dishes and glasses, napkins and table cloths and not pick up and transmit possible infection.

DISHWASHING methods should be doublechecked to make sure they are killing all germs.

Towels, cups and other toilet articles should be used by one person only.

Workers with nose and throat infections should not handle food or utensils or come in contact with other employes or customers.

Employes should be reminded to cover coughs and sneezes, of the need to wash their hands frequently and to keep their hands out of food.

Work should be arranged to avoid unnecessary fatigue among employes.

And, Dr. Dwork said, the general public also should observe good personal hygiene practices.

Ike May Be Forced To Compromise on Swap-with-Allies Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opposition is seen developing in Congress which some think may force compromises in the Eisenhower administration's intention to seek a freer exchange of atomic information with America's allies.

President Eisenhower has said he will ask Congress to lift some of the secrecy provisions of the Atomic Energy Act.

The proposal has drawn a mixed, and none too favorable, reaction from Senate-House Atomic Energy committeemen. Chairman Durham (D-NC), among others, has questioned the adequacy of security systems in nations which would get such secret information.

Sen. Gore (D-Tenn), a member of the committee, said today he believes European readiness to use American nuclear weapons in wartime can be achieved without amending the act.

"I generally favor increased cooperation with our allies in this field and if an amendment to the law is regarded as necessary by the administration, I would give it serious and sympathetic consideration," Gore said.

"BUT AS OF now I know of no such need and none has been indicated to the Senate-House committee."

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles appear determined to seek some lowering of the secrecy ban. But some members of Congress obviously are beginning to see a possible way around this in Dulles' proposal to establish stockpiles of American atomic weapons in Europe.

These weapons would be earmarked for Allied use in the event of war, but would remain under technical control of the United States and thus would not violate

The new building had risen steadily until it reached the level on which pretty Adele Mavis was posing in the raw. After that it rose no higher, and the workmen spent most of their time on the side next to the art school. The foreman investigated, saw Adele and appealed to Skinner.

Red Arms Stand Irking Neutrals

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Russia's brushoff of Western efforts to break the disarmament deadlock may have demonstrated her new ICBM-Sputnik "position of strength." But it also put a severe strain on her friendship with many neutral nations.

Delegates infer this from the lineup in the smashing 60-9 U.N. Assembly endorsement of the West's plan to increase the 12-nation Disarmament Commission to 25 members.

Only the Soviet bloc voted against the proposal despite Russia's warning she would boycott the talks unless half the nations at the conference were Communist or neutral.

The West had been confident of victory on the vote. But few had expected Syria and Egypt, who receive economic and military aid from Moscow, to vote for the plan. Nor had they anticipated support from such Asian neutrals as Ceylon and Indonesia, who usually show a marked preference for Soviet ideas.

A NUMBER of usually pro-Soviet delegations were deeply disturbed by Russia's ever-increasing demands during the East-West negotiations last week on enlarging the commission.

Yugoslav Communists, who played a key role in trying to bring the two sides together, became so annoyed by the Soviet tactics that they divorced themselves from the sponsor's list.

India, who originated the move to enlarge the commission, did not appreciate Russia's sudden rejection of the plan after the Indians had persuaded the West to go along with the compromise.

The Soviets also angered Austria and Finland, who chided them in the Assembly for placing their names on the Red list of commission candidates without telling them in advance.

Most delegates could not accept Russia's contention that half the commission should be made up of Communists and neutrals. The Reds only total one ninth of the Assembly, and even a Communist-neutral census adds up to less than half the 82 nations.

After the Soviets had turned down three Western compromise offers, it became apparent to many that Russia had no intention of taking part in U. N. arms negotiations at this stage and would find some pretext for opposing any compromise.

Many diplomats believe the Kremlin leaders, bolstered by their spectacular success with space missiles, consider U. N. disarmament negotiations a waste of time and want the talks limited to the United States and Russia.

Wake Forest Students Jibe Ban on Dances

About 500 or 600 students, mostly male, participated in the demonstration Wednesday night at the Baptist-supported school.

Hi-fi record players blasted at full volume as the laughing and cheering crowd of students danced and shouted such slogans as "Down with the Baptists."

Student leaders said about 25 per cent of the student body joined in the protest against the Baptist State Convention action in Raleigh. The convention overwhelmingly vetoed campus dancing and apparently ended a lengthy controversy on the topic. School trustees previously had voted to allow dancing.

The students, most of whom wore dark glasses or obscured their faces with handkerchiefs, climaxed the hour long demonstration by burning an effigy labeled "Dr. J. C. Canipe." Canipe retired as president of the Baptist State Convention after speaking against lifting the ban imposed by the convention in 1937.

College policemen took two students, unidentified, in custody for lighting firecrackers.

The convention's action followed a request by trustees of Wake Forest and Meredith College for Women at Raleigh that they allowed to regulate all forms of recreation on their campuses.

Service Rivalry Blamed for U.S. Missile 'Lag'

House Prober Claims Real 'Opposition' Should Be Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Mahon (D-Tex), who contends the United States is "seriously behind" Russia in long-range missiles development, said today interservice rivalry is partly responsible.

"One of our stumbling blocks is and has been interservice rivalry," Mahon said as his House Appropriations subcommittee moved deeper into an inquiry on the status of the U. S. missiles program.

"There should be cooperation and the 'opposition' should be the Soviet Union," he added.

A related program — development of nuclear power to propel planes and missiles — was put under one-office direction.

The Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission announced the creation of an integrated project office to handle the nuclear power work.

Secretary of Defense McElroy, leading off the testimony Wednesday told newsmen afterward the U. S. missiles program is in "good shape." He mentioned in this connection three intermediate range weapons — the Air Force's Thor the Army's Jupiter and the Navy's Polaris.

HOWEVER, Mahon disagreed sharply, saying "we have lagged behind the Russians in the intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) and we've got to come from behind and come abreast as soon as we can."

Agreeing with Mahon, Rep. Sykes (D-Fla) said he "would like to see some specific things that are being done to bring us abreast of the Russians."

However, a third member of the

BB Gun Troubles Still Plague Boys; 2 Seriously Hurt

Boys still have trouble with air rifles.

In Memphis, Tenn., Richard Patterson, 15, a sharpshooter with his BB gun, hit the wrong bullseye when he put a shotgun shell on the ground, aimed, fired, and exploded it. A bit of the brass rim cemented off Richard's forehead. He was treated at a hospital.

In Portsmouth, Ohio, Judge Kenneth Cranston ruled that air rifles are illegal for juveniles.

The ruling came in an investigation of the shooting of Randy Blevins, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Blevins of West Portsmouth.

The child lost the sight of his right eye as a result of being struck by BB shot, his parents informed the court.

The shooting apparently occurred when Randy and a companion and a group of boys got into a squabble over ownership of a ball.

Missing Woman's Fortune 'Vanishes'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A prosecution witness in the murder trial of L. Ewing Scott has testified the defendant's missing wife Evelyn converted $222,929 worth of securities into cash during the couple's six years together.

Scott, 61-year - old investment counselor, is accused of murdering his wife and concealing her body to get control of her estate.

Thomas B. Doherty, a district attorney's accountant, told the jury Wednesday that Mrs. Scott's estate, once valued at $600,000, has dwindled and that $57,000 of it is still unaccounted for.

Mrs. Scott vanished from the couple's home here May 16, 1955. Scott maintains she is still alive and will return some day and explain her absence.

Butcher Files Insanity Plea

Wisconsin Farmer's Lawyer Asks for Test

WAUTOMA, Wis. (AP) — Edward Gein, admitted butcher-slayer of a middle-age business woman, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity when he was arraigned today on a charge of first degree murder. He was ordered held without bond for trial.

His attorney said he would seek an immediate mental test for his client and he added "I don't see how there could be any other conclusion but that the man is insane."

William Belter, counsel for the 51-year-old bachelor farmer who has told authorities he killed two women and robbed graves to obtain nine other human skulls found in his home, said a psychiatric examination could be ordered summarily by a judge.

Dist. Atty. Earl Kileen of Waushara County said he would not oppose a motion for a sanity examination.

Under questioning at the state crime laboratory at Madison Wednesday, Gein admitted, according to Director Charles Wilson, that he killed and butchered Mrs. Bernice Worden, 58-year-old Plainfield hardware store operator, and also killed Mrs. Mary Hogan, 54, tavern operator at Bancroft, Wis., who had been missing since Dec. 8, 1954.

FIRST DEGREE murder is a premeditated killing. Conviction carries a mandatory life term.

NATO Forces To Fight Back Fast---Dulles

No War Declaration To Be Awaited if Allies Are Attacked

CHICAGO (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles says that forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would "almost certainly fight back" without waiting for a declaration of war if attacked.

Dulles said Wednesday night such a decision would be made on the spot by field commanders. He said the attack "almost certainly would involve American troops because the NATO forces are so intermingled."

Fire certainly would be returned, he added, "if it were something comparable to Pearl Harbor, say."

The remarks arose from a question about the "time for decision" in the event of a possible atomic attack on NATO forces.

Adlai Stevenson, the two-time Democratic presidential candidate who has become a consultant to the Eisenhower administration on Atlantic Alliance problems, came to Chicago with Dulles. He told reporters he will do all he can to help in his post as consultant to the Republican administration.

HOWEVER, Stevenson added that he was "certainly not" a member of President Eisenhower's team. He said he has not been asked to attend next month's big NATO meeting in Paris with Eisenhower and Dulles. "There won't be a decision on that until later," he said.

Stevenson says that he will review and discuss U. S. plans to be placed before the NATO conferees.

Dulles said Stevenson "will be on the federal payroll a long, long time." If the former Illinois governor approves of this country's NATO proposals, Dulles said, he

Beef Cattle 'Boom' Seen Due in '58

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today the chances are good that farmers will make at least average profits from feeding of slaughter cattle next year.

In fact, the agency said, there is a possibility that profits may exceed present expectations.

Officials explained at a farm outlook conference attended by state extension workers and educators that a new cattle "boom" is in the making. By this they mean that the demand for beef is strong enough to encourage farmers to produce more beef.

As a consequence, many producers are holding back for breeding purposes cattle which otherwise would go to market for slaughter. They are encouraged to do this by the strong consumer prices and by the declining prices of livestock feed.

But past experience shows, officials said, that there is a danger that producers may overexpand. Then would come a decline in cattle prices with feeding operations causing losses rather than netting profits.

Officials predicted that the low point in prices of cattle fattened this winter for next year's slaughter markets will come later than the normal February. That is because feeding operations got a later start this season than normal.

Egypt To Get Big Soviet Loan

$175 Million Amount Said Negiotated

CAIRO (AP) — Russia's pledge of economic aid for Egypt is reported to mean a $175 million loan for President Nasser's five-year industrialization plan.

The semiofficial Middle East News Agency said the agreement announced in Moscow Tuesday calls for Russia to provide 700 million rubles worth of aid. The official Soviet exchange rate is four rubles to the dollar.

Neither a joint Russian-Egyptian communique nor the Egyptian news agency report said what form the aid would take. But it was assumed that, as in the case of Syria, the rubles would pay for Russian materials, equipment and technical advisers.

Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, the Egyptian war minister who negotiated the agreement with the Kremlin, flew home from Moscow Wednesday in a Soviet jet airliner. He gave Nasser a two-hour report on his visit.

ALTHOUGH Soviet Premier Bulganin had said Russia's aid to Egypt and other Middle East countries is "selfless," the communique said Amer and the Kremlinites had discussed "political cooperation" as well as economic cooperation and military questions. There was no elaboration of this.

The Middle East News Agency said that starting in five years Egypt would repay the loan over a 12-year period.

Smaller Country Schools Said To Be 'Cheating' Youths

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A. F. Throckmorton, Kansas superintendent of schools, says nostalgia for the little country school is cheating 10,000 youngsters in the state of an opportunity for an adequate high school education.

"Rural people, unwilling to relinquish tangible evidence of their days in one-room schools, refuse to allow them to be consolidated," Throckmorton said. "They are doing children an injustice by the maintenance of marginal schools while better schools are available."

He said high schools with 50 or fewer pupils rarely offer courses in chemistry and physics. He estimated instruction in mathematics and science is deficient in small high schools.

About 500 or 600 students, mostly male, participated in the demonstration Wednesday night at the Baptist-supported school.

Hi-fi record players blasted at full volume as the laughing and cheering crowd of students danced and shouted such slogans as "Down with the Baptists."

Student leaders said about 25 per cent of the student body joined in the protest against the Baptist State Convention action in Raleigh. The convention overwhelmingly vetoed campus dancing and apparently ended a lengthy controversy on the topic. School trustees previously had voted to allow dancing.

The students, most of whom wore dark glasses or obscured their faces with handkerchiefs, climaxed the hour long demonstration by burning an effigy labeled "Dr. J. C. Canipe." Canipe retired as president of the Baptist State Convention after speaking against lifting the ban imposed by the convention in 1937.

College policemen took two students, unidentified, in custody for lighting firecrackers.

The convention's action followed a request by trustees of Wake Forest and Meredith College for Women at Raleigh that they allowed to regulate all forms of recreation on their campuses.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Cincinnati woman died Wednesday as she rested before going to a funeral home where her dead husband's body lay.

Service Rivalry Blamed for U.S. Missile 'Lag'

House Prober Claims Real 'Opposition' Should Be Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Mahon (D-Tex), who contends the United States is "seriously behind" Russia in long-range missiles development, said today interservice rivalry is partly responsible.

"One of our stumbling blocks is and has been interservice rivalry," Mahon said as his House Appropriations subcommittee moved deeper into an inquiry on the status of the U. S. missiles program.

"There should be cooperation and the 'opposition' should be the Soviet Union," he added.

A related program — development of nuclear power to propel planes and missiles — was put under one-office direction.

The Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission announced the creation of an integrated project office to handle the nuclear power work.

Secretary of Defense McElroy, leading off the testimony Wednesday told newsmen afterward the U. S. missiles program is in "good shape." He mentioned in this connection three intermediate range weapons — the Air Force's Thor the Army's Jupiter and the Navy's Polaris.

HOWEVER, Mahon disagreed sharply, saying "we have lagged behind the Russians in the intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) and we've got to come from behind and come abreast as soon as we can."

Agreeing with Mahon, Rep. Sykes (D-Fla) said he "would like to see some specific things that are being done to bring us abreast of the Russians."

However, a third member of the

BB Gun Troubles Still Plague Boys; 2 Seriously Hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boys still have trouble with air rifles.

In Memphis, Tenn., Richard Patterson, 15, a sharpshooter with his BB gun, hit the wrong bullseye when he put a shotgun shell on the ground, aimed, fired, and exploded it. A bit of the brass rim caromed off Richard's forehead. He was treated at a hospital.

In Portsmouth, Ohio, Judge Kenneth Cranston ruled that air rifles are illegal for juveniles.

The ruling came in an investigation of the shooting of Randy Blevins, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Blevins of West Portsmouth.

The child lost the sight of his right eye as a result of being struck by BB shot, his parents informed the court.

The shooting apparently occurred when Randy and a companion and a group of boys got into a squabble over ownership of a ball.

Missing Woman's Fortune 'Vanishes'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A prosecution witness in the murder trial of L. Ewing Scott has testified the defendant's missing wife Evelyn converted $222,929 worth of securities into cash during the couple's six years together.

Scott, 61-year - old investment counselor, is accused of murdering his wife and concealing her body to get control of her estate.

Thomas B. Doherty, a district attorney's accountant, told the jury Wednesday that Mrs. Scott's estate, once valued at $600,000, has dwindled and that $57,000 of it is still unaccounted for.

Mrs. Scott vanished from the couple's home here May 16, 1955. Scott maintains she is still alive and will return some day and explain her absence.

Butcher Files Insanity Plea

Wisconsin Farmer's Lawyer Asks for Test

WAUTOMA, Wis. (AP) — Edward Gein, admitted butcher-slayer of a middle-age business woman, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity when he was arraigned today on a charge of first degree murder. He was ordered held without bond for trial.

His attorney said he would seek an immediate mental test for his client and he added "I don't see how there could be any other conclusion but that the man is insane."

William Belter, counsel for the 51-year-old bachelor farmer who has told authorities he killed two women and robbed graves to obtain nine other human skulls found in his home, said a psychiatric examination could be ordered summarily by a judge.

Dist. Atty. Earl Kileen of Waushara County said he would not oppose a motion for a sanity examination.

Under questioning at the state crime laboratory at Madison Wednesday, Gein admitted, according to Director Charles Wilson, that he killed and butchered Mrs. Bernice Worden, 58-year-old Plainfield hardware store operator, and also killed Mrs. Mary Hogan, 54, tavern operator at Bancroft, Wis., who had been missing since Dec. 8, 1954.

FIRST DEGREE murder is a premeditated killing. Conviction carries a mandatory life term.

"We want to get this thing over with as quickly as possible," said Kileen. "Our only interest is seeing that justice is done in the killing of Mrs. Worden."

NATO Forces To Fight Back Fast---Dulles

No War Declaration To Be Awaited if Allies Are Attacked

CHICAGO (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles says that forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would "almost certainly fight back" without waiting for a declaration of war if attacked.

Dulles said Wednesday night such a decision would be made on the spot by field commanders. He said the attack "almost certainly would involve American troops because the NATO forces are so intermingled."

Fire certainly would be returned, he added, "if it were something comparable to Pearl Harbor, say."

The remarks arose from a question about the "time for decision" in the event of a possible atomic attack on NATO forces.

Adlai Stevenson, the two-time Democratic presidential candidate who has become a consultant to the Eisenhower administration on Atlantic Alliance problems, came to Chicago with Dulles. He told reporters he will do all he can to help in his post as consultant to the Republican administration.

HOWEVER, Stevenson added that he was "certainly not" a member of President Eisenhower's team. He said he has not been asked to attend next month's big NATO meeting in Paris with Eisenhower and Dulles. "There won't be a decision on that until later," he said.

Stevenson says that he will review and discuss U. S. plans to be placed before the NATO conferees.

Dulles said Stevenson "will be on the federal payroll a long, long time." If the former Illinois governor approves of this country's NATO proposals, Dulles said, he

Beef Cattle 'Boom' Seen Due in '58

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said today the chances are good that farmers will make at least average profits from feeding of slaughter cattle next year.

In fact, the agency said, there is a possibility that profits may exceed present expectations.

Officials explained at a farm outlook conference attended by state extension workers and educators that a new cattle "boom" is in the making. By this they mean that the demand for beef is strong enough to encourage farmers to produce more beef.

As a consequence, many producers are holding back for breeding purposes cattle which otherwise would go to market for slaughter. They are encouraged to do this by the strong consumer prices and by the declining prices of livestock feed.

But past experience shows, officials said, that there is a danger that producers may overexpand. Then would come a decline in cattle prices with feeding operations causing losses rather than netting profits.

Officials predicted that the low point in prices of cattle fattened this winter for next year's slaughter markets will come later than the normal February. That is because feeding operations got a later start this season than normal.

Egypt To Get Big Soviet Loan

$175 Million Amount Said Negotiated

CAIRO (AP) — Russia's pledge of economic aid for Egypt is reported to mean a $175 million loan for President Nasser's five-year industrialization plan.

The semiofficial Middle East News Agency said the agreement announced in Moscow Tuesday calls for Russia to provide 700 million rubles worth of aid. The official Soviet exchange rate is four rubles to the dollar.

Neither a joint Russian-Egyptian communique nor the Egyptian news agency report said what form the aid would take. But it was assumed that, as in the case of Syria, the rubles would pay for Russian materials, equipment and technical advisers.

Maj. Gen. Abdel Hakim Amer, the Egyptian war minister who negotiated the agreement with the Kremlin, flew home from Moscow Wednesday in a Soviet jet airliner. He gave Nasser a two-hour report on his visit.

ALTHOUGH Soviet Premier Bulganin had said Russia's aid to Egypt and other Middle East countries is "selfless," the communique said Amer and the Kremlinites had discussed "political cooperation" as well as economic cooperation and military questions. There was no elaboration of this.

The Middle East News Agency said that starting in five years Egypt would repay the loan over a 12-year period.

Smaller Country Schools Said To Be 'Cheating' Youths

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A. F. Throckmorton, Kansas superintendent of schools, says nostalgia for the little country school is cheating 10,000 youngsters in the state of an opportunity for an adequate high school education.

"Rural people, unwilling to relinquish tangible evidence of their days in one-room schools, refuse to allow them to be consolidated," Throckmorton said. "They are doing children an injustice by the maintenance of marginal schools while better schools are available."

He said high schools with 50 or fewer pupils rarely offer courses in chemistry and physics. He estimated instruction in mathematics and science is deficient in small high schools.

'Right-to-Work' Program Opposed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Four major labor unions in Ohio have agreed to form a 12-man committee to coordinate opposition to so called "right-to-work" legislation.

A joint announcement Wednesday from the Ohio State Federation of Labor, the Ohio CIO Council, the United Mine Workers and the Railroad Brotherhood, said the committee will serve as a steering group both in fighting "right-to-work" legislation and in acting on any other developments affecting the labor movement.

Each of the four unions will appoint three members. Appointees will be announced later.

Educators Eye Plan To Free 'Indifferent' School Pupils

COLUMBUS (AP)—Pupils 16 years of age or older who are indifferent to their studies could be excused from school under a recommendation that will be made at the Ohio Education Assn. convention here. Ohio's compulsory school law would have to be revised.

Ohio law now requires compulsory attendance of all children until they become 18. The recommendation will be made Friday by the OEA's Education Council. The OEA's three-day convention opened today.

The recommendation is expected to touch off a debate between advocates of an outright reduction of the compulsory attendance age and those who favor the council's recommendation for "selective" measures.

The council report states that outright reduction in the compulsory attendance age "would permit many capable students to drop out" of school. The council will recommend not lowering the attendance age despite a recent survey of educators and juvenile workers that indicated nearly half of them favored lowering the attendance age to 16.

THE COUNCIL also will recommend sponsoring legislation to create "certificates of attendance" for students who have completed the necessary years of school attendance but who are not fully qualified scholastically to receive a diploma.

At an evening session today the OEA Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards will submit for approval a revised code of ethics. If adopted, it will give the OEA greater control over member conduct.

The revised code would change the recommended standards of the present code to minimum standards which members would be expected to meet. A spokesman explained that the wording of the present code, adopted in 1950, casts the standards in the form of goals which teachers should strive to attain, making any enforcement of standards almost impossible.

Linked with the new code will be a proposed constitutional amendment which would give the OEA authority to expel members guilty of "flagrant or continued violation of recognized professional standards."

Police Report Asked after Raid on Thugs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—New York state police who broke up and investigated a "gangland conference" a week ago were under investigation themselves today.

Gov. Averell Harriman disclosed Wednesday night that he had ordered a number of inquiries by state agencies into the mobster meeting. One of them directs the state police superintendent to submit "a complete report on the conduct of the raid."

A spokesman said the governor wanted the report since criticism had been raised about the police action.

Troopers flushed out 60 men last Thursday from Joseph Barbara's remote country mansion in the hamlet of Apalachin in south central New York. Many underworld luminaries were netted.

The troopers made no arrests. They said there was no charge on which to hold any of the guests. The visitors insisted they were visiting a sick friend—Barbara.

There has been criticism of the state police in some quarters over the prompt release of the participants in the meeting. There also have been reports that top state police officials were angry over the fact that they were not consulted during the roundup.

The state police superintendent, Francis S. McGarvey, endorsed the manner in which his subordinates had acted. They did "the best they could under the circumstances," he said.

existing law governing disposal of such weapons.

Gore said that with such stockpiles established the United States could go ahead with all of the necessary preparations for Allied use of the weapons without changing the law.

"There is nothing in the Atomic Energy Act to prevent our allies from being informed of the size of these weapons, their destructive power and of the mechanics for their use," Gore said.

The act prevents the divulging of information about the design and fabrication of the nuclear component of the weapon. It is this information that Eisenhower and Dulles apparently want to pool with Britain and other allies.

However, members of the Senate-House committee have raised questions about the British security system. They have said that if information is given to Britain, it also must be given to France, Italy and West Germany. Some of them regard this as too wide a field of dispersal of secrets.

Magazine's Pennies Enrich Boys Club

MOUNT KISKO, N. Y. (AP)—The Mount Kisko Boys Club is counting its blessings in pennies.

Last spring, Readers Digest magazine mailed out 100 million pennies, two each enclosed in letters to prospective subscribers.

However, 1½ million letters came back because of wrong addresses. That meant a return of three million pennies, or $30,000.

Magazine officials blanched at the thought of opening all those returned letters and digging out the coppers. They offered them to the boys club on a 50-50 basis.

Thus far the club has banked $5,000.

GI Is Lone Patient in U.S. Hospital

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — For the rest of his life, soldier James Martin will be able to look back on Wednesday, Nov. 20, as the day when he had:

His own 515-bed hospital for the cure of his broken leg,

A staff of 15 persons to serve him,

Ten physicians to treat him alone,

Ten nurses to answer his buzzer,

A detachment of military policemen to protect him,

A post exchange to serve only him,

A theater in which he and the hospital staff viewed one of the latest movies, and

His pick of beds.

But that was Wednesday. Today Martin shipped to Ft. Devens Hospital.

Martin, a resident of West Roxbury, was the last patient at Murphy Army General Hospital. All the other patients had been transferred before him in advance of the hospital's closing on Dec. 31.

Martin broke his leg while on duty in Germany and was transferred to the United States for treatment.

subcommittee, Rep. Wigglesworth (R-Mass), said, "Nobody knows that the Russians have. Most of these expressions of opinion are based on guesswork."

Mahon's statement that the United States is seriously behind the Soviet Union in developing an IRBM was challenged by William M. Holaday, the Defense Department's missiles boss. "I don't believe so," Holaday said after emerging from the hearing.

Holaday conceded that "based on what they (the Russians) said, maybe we are behind them" in developing an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM).

Intermediate range missiles are designed to reach targets up to 1,500 miles away. An intercontinental missile would travel 5,000 miles.

Mahon said it would be "a very helpful thing" if the missile program were taken away from the individual services and consolidated "up into the Defense Department."

Another critic of interservice rivalry is Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), who said that such pulling and hauling "suggests an alarming tendency to overlook the real competitor"—Russia.

Probers Plan To Subpoena Union Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rackets investigators said today they will subpoena convention election records of Teamsters locals in the union's Central Conference

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the special Senate committee, said only a few locals in the conference headed by James R. Hoffa have compiled voluntarily with a committee request for the information.

Kennedy told newsmen that over 75 per cent of the delegates on whom information has been received so far were elected in violation of the union's constitution.

The records, which Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) asked by letter last month, deal with local union's selection of delegates to the convention which elected Hoffa president of the Teamsters.

The committee contends many of the delegates were chosen improperly. Similar charges have been made in a Federal District Court suit challenging Hoffa's election, and he has been barred from taking office pending outcome of the suit. Trial now is scheduled for Dec. 2.

'Wolves' Said Reason For House Value Cut

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — A court has granted shapely, 31-year-old Mrs. Mildred Barker a cut in her real estate tax because of wolves.

Mrs. Barker said the wolves were the male employes of an engineering works a few yards from her home. She testified she drew wolf whistles "when I hang out the laundry, when I wash the steps and when I sunbathe in summer."

She argued, and the tax court agreed Wednesday, that this lessened the value of the house.

has expressed a willingness to work for their adoption abroad and in this country.

He said Stevenson is on the government payroll and that the pay for consultants is $50 a day "or something like that."

Dulles, in an extemporaneous speech before members of the Council on Foreign Relations Wednesday night, said the launching of Russian earth satellites would be a very good thing indeed if they lead us to realize the magnitude of our peril.

The only possible means of meeting this threat, he said, was in cooperation with other free nations—a policy which he said has been successful since 1950. There has been virtually no extension of Soviet domain since then, he said.

The Russians, he said, are trying to make a deal with the United States under which the United States would drop all bans on the sale to them of strategic goods, acquiesce in the Soviet control over Eastern Europe and either demote or drop our Western allies.

This is too heavy a price to pay, he said, because no country which ever made a deal with the Russians ever got what they promised.

Gein also "divulged new and more horrifying details of his ghoulish activities."

In a dispatch from Madison, Wis., the Tribune said it learned that Gein, "a shy, sly, mild-mannered bachelor, had wanted to be a woman and that he said this compulsion prompted him to kill women and steal other bodies from graves to get parts to wear upon his own body."

The story said "this most appalling denouncement of the entire case" came after Charles Wilson, head of the state crime laboratory, reported that Gein had admitted the killing of Mrs. Mary Hogan, 54, at his farm near Plainfield, in central Wisconsin. Mrs. Hogan, a tavern operator at Bancroft, Wis., had been missing since Dec. 8, 1954. Earlier Gein had admitted killing and butchering Mrs. Bernice Worden, 58-year-old hardware store owner of Plainfield last Saturday.

GEIN WAS returned to the Waushara County jail at Wautoma Wednesday from Madison to await arraignment on a charge of first-degree murder.

Gein was at the laboratory for a total of 10½ hours but underwent only short periods of lie detector tests. The rest of the time was spent in interrogations.

Mrs. Worden's mutilated body was discovered on Gein's farm near Plainfield Saturday night. Authorities searching the littered farmhouse found a collection of human skulls which are being scrutinized by the laboratory. Gein declared he obtained the skulls in a series of grave robberies from 1944 to 1952.

Educators Eye Plan To Free 'Indifferent' School Pupils

COLUMBUS (AP)—Pupils 16 years of age or older who are indifferent to their studies could be excused from school under a recommendation that will be made at the Ohio Education Assn. convention here. Ohio's compulsory school law would have to be revised.

Ohio law now requires compulsory attendance of all children until they become 18. The recommendation will be made Friday by the OEA's Education Council. The OEA's three-day convention opened today.

The recommendation is expected to touch off a debate between advocates of an outright reduction of the compulsory attendance age and those who favor the council's recommendation for "selective" measures.

The council report states that outright reduction in the compulsory attendance age "would permit many capable students to drop out" of school. The council will recommend not lowering the attendance age despite a recent survey of educators and juvenile workers that indicated nearly half of them favored lowering the attendance age to 16.

THE COUNCIL also will recommend sponsoring legislation to create "certificates of attendance" for students who have completed the necessary years of school attendance but who are not fully qualified scholastically to receive a diploma.

At an evening session today the OEA Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards will submit for approval a revised code of ethics. If adopted, it will give the OEA greater control over member conduct.

The revised code would change the recommended standards of the present code to minimum standards which members would be expected to meet. A spokesman explained that the wording of the present code, adopted in 1950, casts the standards in the form of goals which teachers should strive to attain, making any enforcement of standards almost impossible.

Linked with the new code will be a proposed constitutional amendment which would give the OEA authority to expel members guilty of "flagrant or continued violation of recognized professional standards."

existing law governing disposal of such weapons.

Gore said that with such stockpiles established the United States could go ahead with all of the necessary preparations for Allied use of the weapons without changing the law.

"There is nothing in the Atomic Energy Act to prevent our allies from being informed of the size of these weapons, their destructive power and of the mechanics for their use," Gore said.

The act prevents the divulging of information about the design and fabrication of the nuclear component of the weapon. It is this information that Eisenhower and Dulles apparently want to pool with Britain and other allies.

However, members of the Senate-House committee have raised questions about the British security system. They have said that if information is given to Britain, it also must be given to France, Italy and West Germany. Some of them regard this as too wide a field of dispersal of secrets.

Magazine's Pennies Enrich Boys Club

MOUNT KISKO, N. Y. (AP)—The Mount Kisko Boys Club is counting its blessings in pennies.

Last spring, Readers Digest magazine mailed out 100 million pennies, two each enclosed in letters to prospective subscribers.

However, 1½ million letters came back because of wrong addresses. That meant a return of three million pennies, or $30,000.

Magazine officials blanched at the thought of opening all those returned letters and digging out the coppers. They offered them to the boys club on a 50-50 basis.

Thus far the club has banked $5,000.

Police Report Asked after Raid on Thugs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—New York state police who broke up and investigated a "gangland conference" a week ago were under investigation themselves today.

Gov. Averell Harriman disclosed Wednesday night that he had ordered a number of inquiries by state agencies into the mobster meeting. One of them directs the state police superintendent to submit "a complete report on the conduct of the raid."

A spokesman said the governor wanted the report since criticism had been raised about the police action.

Troopers flushed out 60 men last Thursday from Joseph Barbara's remote country mansion in the hamlet of Apalachin in south central New York. Many underworld luminaries were netted.

The troopers made no arrests. They said there was no charge on which to hold any of the guests. The visitors insisted they were visiting a sick friend—Barbara.

There has been criticism of the state police in some quarters over the prompt release of the participants in the meeting. There also have been reports that top state police officials were angry over the fact that they were not consulted during the roundup.

The state police superintendent, Francis S. McGarvey, endorsed the manner in which his subordinates had acted. They did "the best they could under the circumstances," he said.

GI Is Lone Patient in U.S. Hospital

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — For the rest of his life, soldier James Martin will be able to look back on Wednesday, Nov. 20, as the day when he had:

His own 515-bed hospital for the cure of his broken leg,

A staff of 15 persons to serve him,

Ten physicians to treat him alone,

Ten nurses to answer his buzzer,

A detachment of military policemen to protect him,

A post exchange to serve only him,

A theater in which he and the hospital staff viewed one of the latest movies, and

His pick of beds.

But that was Wednesday. Today Martin shipped to Ft. Devens Hospital.

Martin, a resident of West Roxbury, was the last patient at Murphy Army General Hospital. All the other patients had been transferred before him in advance of the hospital's closing on Dec. 31.

Martin broke his leg while on duty in Germany and was transferred to the United States for treatment.

subcommittee, Rep. Wigglesworth (R-Mass), said, "Nobody knows that the Russians have. Most of these expressions of opinion are based on guesswork."

Mahon's statement that the United States is seriously behind the Soviet Union in developing an IRBM was challenged by William M. Holaday, the Defense Department's missiles boss. "I don't believe so," Holaday said after emerging from the hearing.

Holaday conceded that "based on what they (the Russians) said, maybe we are behind them" in developing an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM).

Intermediate range missiles are designed to reach targets up to 1,500 miles away. An intercontinental missile would travel 5,000 miles.

Mahon said it would be "a very helpful thing" if the missile program were taken away from the individual services and consolidated "up into the Defense Department."

Another critic of interservice rivalry is Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), who said that such pulling and hauling "suggests an alarming tendency to overlook the real competitor"—Russia.

Probers Plan To Subpoena Union Records

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate rackets investigators said today they will subpoena convention election records of Teamsters locals in the union's Central Conference

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel of the special Senate committee, said only a few locals in the conference headed by James R. Hoffa have compiled voluntarily with a committee request for the information.

Kennedy told newsmen that over 75 per cent of the delegates on whom information has been received so far were elected in violation of the union's constitution.

The records, which Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) asked by letter last month, deal with local union's selection of delegates to the convention which elected Hoffa president of the Teamsters.

The committee contends many of the delegates were chosen improperly. Similar charges have been made in a Federal District Court suit challenging Hoffa's election, and he has been barred from taking office pending outcome of the suit. Trial now is scheduled for Dec. 2.

'Wolves' Said Reason For House Value Cut

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — A court has granted shapely, 31-year-old Mrs. Mildred Barker a cut in her real estate tax because of wolves.

Mrs. Barker said the wolves were the male employes of an engineering works a few yards from her home. She testified she drew wolf whistles "when I hang out the laundry, when I wash the steps and when I sunbathe in summer."

She argued, and the tax court agreed Wednesday, that this lessened the value of the house.

He said Stevenson is on the government payroll and that the pay for consultants is $50 a day "or something like that."

Dulles, in an extemporaneous speech before members of the Council on Foreign Relations Wednesday night, said the launching of Russian earth satellites would be a very good thing indeed if they lead us to realize the magnitude of our peril.

The only possible means of meeting this threat, he said, was in cooperation with other free nations—a policy which he said has been successful since 1950. There has been virtually no extension of Soviet domain since then, he said.

The Russians, he said, are trying to make a deal with the United States under which the United States would drop all bans on the sale to them of strategic goods, acquiesce in the Soviet control over Eastern Europe and either demote or drop our Western allies.

This is too heavy a price to pay, he said, because no country which ever made a deal with the Russians ever got what they promised.

Earlier Gein had admitted killing and butchering Mrs. Bernice Worden, 58-year-old hardware store owner of Plainfield last Saturday.

GEIN WAS returned to the Waushara County jail at Wautoma Wednesday from Madison to await arraignment on a charge of first-degree murder.

Gein was at the laboratory for a total of 10½ hours but underwent only short periods of lie detector tests. The rest of the time was spent in interrogations.

Mrs. Worden's mutilated body was discovered on Gein's farm near Plainfield Saturday night. Authorities searching the littered farmhouse found a collection of human skulls which are being scrutinized by the laboratory. Gein declared he obtained the skulls in a series of grave robberies from 1944 to 1952.

Christmas Seal Buying Important

During the past week over 7,000 families in Pickaway County have now received letters enclosing Christmas Seals from the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association and this active local organization's work is deserving of liberal contributions from the people of this community

Each year, as the Christmas season approaches, through the efforts of the National TB Association, a vigorous Christmas Seal campaign is carried on to finance the extensive work carried on. The greatest part of the contributions made is retained by each local association to aid the work in its home community.

It would be hard indeed to find a cause more worthy of public interest and support. Quite a sizable amount of money has been spent in our own local community by the association here toward aiding people who need help.

Great strides have been made in fighting tuberculosis—due in no small part to the work of the national and local associations, and to the financial success past sales have achieved. A great deal more remains to be done and must be done.

The latest estimates indicate that more than 250,000 Americans have active TB, 100,000 of them unknown to health authorities. In addition, there are 1,750,000 people with inactive TB, and 550,000 of them are still in need of medical supervision or public health follow-up.

An estimated 55,000,000 Americans — a third of the population—are infected with the germs that cause TB. Some 2,700,000 of this huge group will develop TB in their lifetimes, if the present rate of development of disease from infection continues.

Early diagnosis and immediate treatment are essential in the control of TB. Education of the public and continued research are other vital weapons in this war.

The Christmas Seal Sale supports the work of the 3,000 voluntary tuberculosis associations in this country and its possessions. Significantly, of the money raised each year in local communities, 94 per cent remains within the state.

The campaign began November 15 and will continue through December. Do your part by buying seals.

Hornblow Toots Rare Bugle

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood producers, who aren't sure on some days themselves just what they have or haven't accomplished, are a bit at a loss as to how to explain their job.

"A producer is to a movie what an editor is to a magazine," said Arthur Hornblow Jr., a real pro in his field. "He puts it together."

Hornblow, who is 64, balding, dark-eyed and quite vocal, has been an Army lieutenant (Vintage: World War I) and a lawyer. But he has also produced some 40 to 50 pictures.

He has some strong opinions about the role of producers and the present plight and future of Hollywood, which he loves and thinks has a real impact for good in the world.

Let us start with the public's attitude toward producers, which annoys him:

"Too many people have the idea that producers are foreign illiterates—and their objective is vulgarity," he said.

"This is probably our fault. Hollywood can sell pictures, but it can't sell itself. It suffers from the poorest institutional publicity I know of.

"A producer doesn't aim at vulgarity. He tries his damndest to make the best picture he can.

"Actually, there are 142 members of the Screen Producers Guild, and they make 98 per cent of the movies made in this country.

"Of that number more than 100 have been to college, and 127 are American-born.

"Only three never went beyond grammar school, and one of them is, in my opinion, as cultured as any man I ever met.

"All races, religions and political points of view are as evenly divided among producers as in any representative segment of the American community."

What is wrong with the movie business today?

"If anything kills the film industry it won't be the disinterest of the public," said Hornblow. "It will be the green badge of vanity—the exorbitant money demands of talent for purposes of prestige.

"It will be the demands of stars, directors and writers—their insistence on high salaries which the tax laws won't even allow them to keep.

"Everybody is attached to the tail of the kite of the most successful man in town in his field. This attitude threatens Hollywood with economic disaster."

Hornblow's point was that a novel that once could be bought for $30,000 now costs $300,000, a star who once would take $50,000 for a picture now wants a guarantee several times that large, and so do writers and directors. His further point was that, in most cases, as a result of tax laws, these demands had become symbols of prestige rather than actual take-home pay.

"The range of what Hollywood is prepared to pay for anything should be cut in half," he said. "Then the movie industry would be healthy. Talent must take some of the risks, too."

Right or wrong, Hornblow toots the most forthright bugle that has come this way from Hollywood in a long time.

Invasion Fear Breeds Fear

By George Sokolsky

For 40 years, Soviet Russia has been living in fear. It all started during the very earliest days of the Revolution when the soldiers were throwing away their rifles and going home to their villages. The Czarist officers and cadets had organized themselves into White Guards to distinguish them from the Reds.

Gen. Kornilov, ho had really paved the way for the Bolsheviks by scaring everybody, passed from the scene. However, in the south, Gen. Denikin had started a counter-revolution; in the east, Adm. Kolchak had founded an an anti-Bolshevik government; behind him stood the Cossack Ataman Semenov with his wild Mongol hordes.

The Bolsheviks could not know where the attack would come from. At Chita, for instance, was a grand encampment of self-governing Czechs who might have established a government of their own in any area they chose in the Lake Baikal region. It was expected that British, French and American troops would march through Russia and reestablish the second front against the Kaiser.

The first task of the Bolshevik government was to make peace with the Germans. For this purpose, negotiations were established at Brest-Litovsk. It is curious how history is affected decisively and finally by the attitude of single individuals. Trotzky, I am convinced, favored continuing the war against Germany if the allies would then and there recognize the Bolsheviks as the legitimate successors of the Kerensky regime and would provide the Bolsheviks such aid as Kerensky received.

I know that these views were presented to several of the many conflicting Americans who were in Petrograd in those days. Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador, was opposed to dealing with the Reds. Our Ambassador, David Francis, was not a man of strong opinions except that he hated Raymond Robins, the Red Cross man, and Edgar Sisson, George Creel's man and Arthur Bullard, who was, I believe, Colonel House's representative.

An incident occurred about this time, the general outlines of which are clear in my memory although some of the details may be wrong. The plan was to kidnap Ambassador Francis and to hold him hostage until Big Bill Haywood was let out of prison in the United States. The idea was to show the world a picture of proletarian solidarity. I heard of this plot in my rounds as a reporter. I repeated it to Trotzky, pointing out that if anyone kidnapped the American Ambassador, for whatever reason, it would justify intervention.

Trotzky stationed a tank and troops in front of the American Embassy to safeguard Francis and if my memory serves me, he called on Francis. That was a rare moment when an understanding might have been reached. The Bolshevik policy of antagonism through fear had not yet jelled. But the moment passed by and it was not long after that that most of us were required to leave Russia altogether.

From that time, 40 years ago, the people of Russia have believed that during the Revolution, their country had been invaded and held by foreign troops.

In fact, when in March 1918, I travelled through Siberia to China, foreign troops were actually on Russian soil. We first encountered them at Chita where the Czechs were; then as we moved into Manchuria, the build-up of Japanese troops was just beginning.

The Japanese definitely planned to take the maritime provinces of Siberia. This would have included such cities as Vladivostok, Habarovsk, and the vast area to the north. American railroad engineers and troops were being sent in to prevent the Trans-Siberian Railroad and the northern half of the Chinese Eastern Railroad from falling to the Japanese as the loot of war. Also the Americans were there to help the Czechs to return to their own country.

Nevertheless the Americans and Japanese were all over that area and if they developed an antagonism toward each other, it did not matter to the Russians who feared them both and wanted them off Russian soil.

Soviet Russia signed a separate peace with the Germans at Brest-Litovsk after considerable trouble. Altogether the feeling of every Russian, important or just plain Ivan, was that the Great Powers were taking advantage of Russia's distress to partition the country among them. It was this attitude that added strength to the Bolshevik cause and gained for it currency among elements that hated Bolshevism and all Bolsheviks.

Drug Allergies Hard to Find

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Frequently in the past I've stressed the value of skin tests in determining certain allergies.

In the case of airborne pollens, molds and even in some instances of food allergy, these skin tests work very well.

Drug allergy, however, is something else again. Skin tests have relatively little value in diagnosing allergy to non-protein drugs.

Oh, in certain cases, the tests will produce reactions all right. And if a positive reaction does appear, it indicates the person is highly sensitive to that particular drug.

But in many, many cases no reaction appears, and this does not necessarily mean that this particular person is not allergic to that specific drug. In short, a negative reaction does not mean there is no allergy.

For contact dermatitis caused by certain medications, the patch tests have some value. In this type of skin test, the suspected drug is placed on the unbroken skin and permitted to remain there for a minimum of 24 hours.

Yet, even in these cases, a negative reaction does not always mean you are not allergic to the drug. Besides, in some cases, the mere testing of the drug may bring on an attack.

How, then, can you and your physician determine whether you are allergic to specific drugs?

Well, if either you or your doctor have good reason to suspect you are allergic to a certain drug, generally that's enough to indicate it should be avoided.

About the only other way of making sure, as far as I can see, is to try small doses cautiously. It's sort of a trial-and-error method, but in many cases this is the only way a drug can be tested for allergic reactions.

At any rate, the final decision as to whether you should have a specific drug should be left to your doctor.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

H. C.: I have been nearsighted all my life, and have been wearing glasses since five. I am now 24 and, although the glasses help me see better, they have not improved my condition.

What do you advise?

Answer: Nearsightedness cannot be cured. However, properly fitted glasses help to keep the condition from becoming worse.

The World Today

By James Marlow

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western Big Three tanglefooted their way into an explosion in the Middle East in 1956. They're in the flypaper again. This time it's next door in Tunisia.

In 1950 both Israelis and Arabs in the flaming Middle East wanted arms. The United States, Britain and France — wanting to stay friendly with both sides and keep Russia away — agreed to supply arms to both sides.

They'd do this, the Big Three said, but only if a receiving nation promised not to use the arms against a neighbor. And they warned they'd jump in and stop any attack by one Middle East nation on another.

The agreement wound up in disaster. This country, while supplying arms to other Arabs, gave none to Egypt. Egypt got them from Russia. This opened the door wide to Russian influence.

Meanwhile, this country let Britain, France and Canada do the supplying for Israel. With Russia playing his big brother, Egyptian President Nasser got obnoxious. In the fall of 1956 Israel attacked Egypt.

So did Britain and France, thus making a farce of the 1950 agreement.

Threats by Russia and demands by this country forced Israel, Britain and France to withdraw.

The scene shifts now west along the Mediterranean to Tunisia, which after a 25-year struggle to get free of France, became independent last year. Instead of turning to Russia, Tunisia is pro-West.

Although independent, it remains part of the French Union. It wants and needs French help and business. But right next door in Algeria the nationalist rebels have been fighting several years to shake off French control.

France pumped troops into Algeria. To escape them and return to fight again. Algerians have slipped over the frontier into Tunisia. And so did the French in pursuit of them.

No one can predict what turn this will take for Tunisia, whose armed forces are outnumbered by Algerians and French. Tunisia asked France for arms. France laid down conditions Tunisia refused to accept.

Tunisia, mindful of what Egypt did, let it be known it would turn to the Communists of Europe for arms if France refused them. Egyptian President Nasser, seeing a chance to give the West more trouble, offered Tunisia arms which, of course, had to come from Russia since he has none of his own.

This got action from the United States and Britain, which were also mindful of what happened in Egypt. They promised help to Tunisia and sent in arms. This outraged the French.

Steaming at its two big allies, the French sent Foreign Minister Pineau here to talk to Secretary of State Dulles.

They got along all right, and when Pineau left Wednesday night for New York he was optimistic some understanding agreeable to the United States, Britain, France and Tunisia would be reached. It hasn't been yet.

Trotzky, I am convinced, favored continuing the war against Germany if the allies would then and there recognize the Bolsheviks as the legitimate successors of the Kerensky regime and would provide the Bolsheviks such aid as Kerensky received.

I know that these views were presented to several of the many conflicting Americans who were in Petrograd in those days. Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador, was opposed to dealing with the Reds. Our Ambassador, David Francis, was not a man of strong opinions except that he hated Raymond Robins, the Red Cross man, and Edgar Sisson, George Creel's man and Arthur Bullard, who was, I believe, Colonel House's representative.

An incident occurred about this time, the general outlines of which are clear in my memory although some of the details may be wrong. The plan was to kidnap Ambassador Francis and to hold him hostage until Big Bill Haywood was let out of prison in the United States. The idea was to show the world a picture of proletarian solidarity. I heard of this plot in my rounds as a reporter. I repeated it to Trotzky, pointing out that if anyone kidnapped the American Ambassador, for whatever reason, it would justify intervention.

Trotzky stationed a tank and troops in front of the American Embassy to safeguard Francis and if my memory serves me, he called on Francis. That was a rare moment when an understanding might have been reached. The Bolshevik policy of antagonism through fear had not yet jelled. But the moment passed by and it was not long after that that most of us were required to leave Russia altogether.

From that time, 40 years ago, the people of Russia have believed that during the Revolution, their country had been invaded and held by foreign troops.

In fact, when in March 1918, I travelled through Siberia to China, foreign troops were actually on Russian soil. We first encountered them at Chita where the Czechs were; then as we moved into Manchuria, the build-up of Japanese troops was just beginning.

The Japanese definitely planned to take the maritime provinces of Siberia. This would have included such cities as Vladivostok, Habarovsk, and the vast area to the north. American railroad engineers and troops were being sent in to prevent the Trans-Siberian Railroad and the northern half of the Chinese Eastern Railroad from falling to the Japanese as the loot of war. Also the Americans were there to help the Czechs to return to their own country.

Nevertheless the Americans and Japanese were all over that area and if they developed an antagonism toward each other, it did not matter to the Russians who feared them both and wanted them off Russian soil.

Soviet Russia signed a separate peace with the Germans at Brest-Litovsk after considerable trouble. Altogether the feeling of every Russian, important or just plain Ivan, was that the Great Powers were taking advantage of Russia's distress to partition the country among them. It was this attitude that added strength to the Bolshevik cause and gained for it currency among elements that hated Bolshevism and all Bolsheviks.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

IN THE REFERENCE library of Doubleday and Co., publishers, there is a copy of a special edition of Edwin Markham's "The Man With the Hoe," with illustrations by Howard Pyle, published in 1900. Harvey Breit, preparing an article on the collection, opened the book and found this inscription written on the flyleaf by the then-boss-man of the firm, F. N. Doubleday, in his own hand: "This edition was made to please the author and get his next book. It did neither."

What in the world have the following gentlemen got in common: Elbridge Gerry, George M. Dallas, William R. King, Hannibal Hamlin, Henry Wilson, William A. Wheeler, Thomas A. Hendricks and Garrett A. Hobart? Well, for one thing, all of them were vice presidents of the United States!

Drug Allergies Hard to Find

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Frequently in the past I've stressed the value of skin tests in determining certain allergies.

In the case of airborne pollens, molds and even in some instances of food allergy, these skin tests work very well.

Drug allergy, however, is something else again. Skin tests have relatively little value in diagnosing allergy to non-protein drugs.

Oh, in certain cases, the tests will produce reactions all right. And if a positive reaction does appear, it indicates the person is highly sensitive to that particular drug.

But in many, many cases no reaction appears, and this does not necessarily mean that this particular person is not allergic to that specific drug. In short, a negative reaction does not mean there is no allergy.

For contact dermatitis caused by certain medications, the patch tests have some value. In this type of skin test, the suspected drug is placed on the unbroken skin and permitted to remain there for a minimum of 24 hours.

Yet, even in these cases, a negative reaction does not always mean you are not allergic to the drug. Besides, in some cases, the mere testing of the drug may bring on an attack.

How, then, can you and your physician determine whether you are allergic to specific drugs?

Well, if either you or your doctor have good reason to suspect you are allergic to a certain drug, generally that's enough to indicate it should be avoided.

About the only other way of making sure, as far as I can see, is to try small doses cautiously. It's sort of a trial-and-error method, but in many cases this is the only way a drug can be tested for allergic reactions.

At any rate, the final decision as to whether you should have a specific drug should be left to your doctor.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

H. C.: I have been nearsighted all my life, and have been wearing glasses since five. I am now 24 and, although the glasses help me see better, they have not improved my condition.

What do you advise?

Answer: Nearsightedness cannot be cured. However, properly fitted glasses help to keep the condition from becoming worse.

The World Today

By James Marlow

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western Big Three tanglefooted their way into an explosion in the Middle East in 1956. They're in the flypaper again. This time it's next door in Tunisia.

In 1950 both Israelis and Arabs in the flaming Middle East wanted arms. The United States, Britain and France — wanting to stay friendly with both sides and keep Russia away — agreed to supply arms to both sides.

They'd do this, the Big Three said, but only if a receiving nation promised not to use the arms against a neighbor. And they warned they'd jump in and stop any attack by one Middle East nation on another.

The agreement wound up in disaster. This country, while supplying arms to other Arabs, gave none to Egypt. Egypt got them from Russia. This opened the door wide to Russian influence.

Meanwhile, this country let Britain, France and Canada do the supplying for Israel. With Russia playing his big brother, Egyptian President Nasser got obnoxious. In the fall of 1956 Israel attacked Egypt.

So did Britain and France, thus making a farce of the 1950 agreement.

Threats by Russia and demands by this country forced Israel, Britain and France to withdraw.

The scene shifts now west along the Mediterranean to Tunisia, which after a 25-year struggle to get free of France, became independent last year. Instead of turning to Russia, Tunisia is pro-West.

Although independent, it remains part of the French Union. It wants and needs French help and business. But right next door in Algeria the nationalist rebels have been fighting several years to shake off French control.

France pumped troops into Algeria. To escape them and return to fight again. Algerians have slipped over the frontier into Tunisia. And so did the French in pursuit of them.

No one can predict what turn this will take for Tunisia, whose armed forces are outnumbered by Algerians and French. Tunisia asked France for arms. France laid down conditions Tunisia refused to accept.

Tunisia, mindful of what Egypt did, let it be known it would turn to the Communists of Europe for arms if France refused them. Egyptian President Nasser, seeing a chance to give the West more trouble, offered Tunisia arms which, of course, had to come from Russia since he has none of his own.

This got action from the United States and Britain, which were also mindful of what happened in Egypt. They promised help to Tunisia and sent in arms. This outraged the French.

Steaming at its two big allies, the French sent Foreign Minister Pineau here to talk to Secretary of State Dulles.

They got along all right, and when Pineau left Wednesday night for New York he was optimistic some understanding agreeable to the United States, Britain, France and Tunisia would be reached. It hasn't been yet.

Hal Boyle, the Poor Man's Plato

He's a Wit, a Worrier, a Legend, And Quite an All-Round Swell Guy

Editor's Note: Millions of readers have learned this much about Hal Boyle: he has many faces. Seldom, however, does his daily column—printed in this and hundreds of other American newspapers—reveal at one time more than a single facet of a personality endowed with spectacular range. In this story, for the first time an Associated Press writer attempts to draw a picture of the complete Hal Boyle.

By SAUL PETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

As it must to all men, a spontaneous, unrehearsed evening on the town—a night out with the boys—comes occasionally into the life of Hal Boyle, the columnist.

Thus, on a recent evening of warm friendship, Boyle was overstaying his leave at Pat Moriarty's Chop House. The phone rang several times and each time Boyle, with the characteristic cowardice of overdue husbands, shouted to the owner:

"Pat, if that's my wife, tell her I just left."

Hours later, Boyle arrived home and learned, with a wide-eyed look of sublime innocence, that there had been dinner guests long since departed. In forceful terms, Frances Boyle delivered a lecture on thoughtless husbands. And then the phone rang.

Boyle said, "Frances, if that's Pat Moriarty, tell him I just left."

This, of course, is classic Boyle, pure Boyle, the legendary Boyle who invaded North Africa throwing candy from his jeep to the natives and shouting, "Vote for Boyle, son of toil. Honest Hal, the Arabs pal."

There are other Boyles, most of whom creep into his daily AP column, which appears in more than 500 papers and is probably the most widely printed in America.

There is Boyle, the thinker or "poor man's philosopher," Boyle, the moved and moving poet, the clown, the brooder, the mystic, the sensitive, defenseless child, the hatless, hateless student of humanity, the father, the husband, the son, the Walter Mitty Boyle with a secret dream of telling somebody off just once, the collector of odd facts, the gentle wit who turns the foil on himself, the loving Boswell of the GI, the faceless and the frustrated.

There is the gay, the folksy, the gregarious Boyle, the organizational Boyle who serves on committees, collects for office Christmas parties, farewell parties and funerals. The physical Boyle concerned about his 46 years, his 200 pounds, his broad, broken nose, his thinning, brown hair. The naive Boyle who thinks he will weigh 170 again, the proud Boyle who, on losing a single ounce, introduces himself as "the new tiger man."

And always, in a partly hidden room, there is the Boyle with the half-sung heartsong, the sweet sadness, the dreams that got away, the vague loneliness, the Boyle eternally aware that every man born of woman must die, that each new day is both an arrival and departure, that even Peter Pan would have grown old writing a daily column.

By a mysterious, suspenseful chemistry, these separate Boyles somehow manage to coalesce every weekday into the written word. And the words, over the years, have added up to a Pulitzer prize and other awards, to columns dramatized on television and reprinted in magazines and anthologies, to the respect of fellow writers and the devotion of his readers who yearn, sigh, laugh and cry with him, readers who frame columns on their wall and have others engraved on personal greeting cards.

Harold Vincent Boyle spends 22 hours a day, awake or asleep, thinking, worrying about his column and two hours actually writing it. Boyle at the typewriter is a horrible sight. It is the time, he says, when "you just take a cold chisel, put it to your head, and start quarrying."

Boyle at the typewriter, with 60 or 90 minutes to go, is taut, silent, stiff, intense, measuring each word carefully, writing, X-ing out, rephrasing, sweating into a shining simplicity.

He can't work without chewing murderously on his cigar, stopping compulsively to comb his hair or take a deep breath like a pitcher nervously eying the batter and that small strike zone. Only a writer knows how small that strike zone is.

This is the Boyle who sees nothing, hears nothing, hasn't a friend in the world, is a child alone in a forest of dark terror. This is where all retreat, all delay, all distraction must end. This is the wall, and Boyle writes every morning with his back to it.

"I've got to get a few columns ahead, get a backlog," says Boyle, the optimist.

"I can only write on deadline," says Boyle, the realist. "Emily Dickinson said, 'wine is the gift of screws.' I find the deadline squeezes the best out of you in a hurry."

From the screws of deadline and the torture of self-doubt has come a kaleidoscopic procession in print—portraits, vignettes, fables, homemade proverbs, holidays remembered, interviews, personal experiences, faded dreams, lingering hopes.

A GI dead in Normandy, "at final ease stretched in eternal langor." . . . In South Carolina, "a tar-papered shack wearying a hill." . . . Of October, when "everything that walks the earth feels an amber thrill." . . . Of the triumph of an Irishman on St. Pat's Day, when he hears "the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity . . . the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon . . ."

Of a childless couple named Boyle yearning for a baby . . . Of looking into the mirror on your 40th birthday, searching for the boy that used to be, finding "all that was left of him was his eyes—two blue pools of doubt, two wells of childhood reluctant to cloud over." . . . Of the time Internal Revenue called for an explanation and Boyle tried to plead "temporary insanity . . . ." Of the adoption of a daughter (Tracy Ann Boyle is now 4), trying to make her realize she was a chosen child, picked out from all the earth's millions.

But Tracy Ann refuses to absorb the meaning of adoption. "Sometime, though," Boyle concluded, "she will ask a question. But not now. Not now."

These well-ordered phrases are born every morning at a monumentally disordered desk, usually piled more than a foot high with unopened mail, papers, books, magazines, forgotten shopping list. Boyle always has a fancy explanation for the clutter.

"Rather have the chaos on the desk than in my head." Or: "A clean desk is the sign of a frightened mind."

This, of course, is malarkey. A clean desk requires a decisive owner. You must be able to decide whether to file, answer or throw away a letter. Boyle loathes decisions.

The Boyles live simply in a four-room Manhattan apartment overlooking the East River.

The Boyles own no car because Hal never learned to drive one. But they do have two bathrooms—a fact which Hal cites as a milestone in his life and uses to explain his attitude toward money.

"What more does a man need?" he asks. "I don't need a lot of possessions. I'm just a boy from Kansas City, the son of a butcher. I'm afraid of the impressive and suspicious of the elegant. I know only one headwaiter by name and, just learned mine. At home, where I grew up, there were seven of us waiting to use one bathroom. Now I have two. How many more does a family need?"

His hobbies are "brooding and watching people and trying to understand them," thinking up titles for books he'll never write, shopping for suits he won't buy until Frances sees them, counting the columns left to do before retirement, and day-dreaming.

"A writer is always making up little dreams in which he's the hero or the villain. But he always stops short, when he dreams the villain role, for fear he may be caught. The only revenge I take on people is in my mind. At the last moment, even in my dreams, I have to show them charity.

"My fears? The biggest thing I have to fight is a feeling of insufficiency—that I won't be able to muster the talent to do the work the way I'd like. Also, I have a fear that people will think I'm ridiculous, or a loudmouth, or a showoff, when actually I'm afraid most of the time.

"Hates? I hate people who throw their weight around, who try to rob a man of his dignity. Will Rogers used to say, 'I never met a man I didn't like.' I can't say that.

"But I can say I nver met a human being I didn't feel sorry for. I think this is a hard world and I think every human in it, at one time or another, has a hard time. The thing I admire most is people who face life with courage, loyalty and a sense of humor."

Boyle caught the writing virus relatively late. Growing up in Kansas City, he first wanted to be an engineer and "go around the world in high leather boots, building bridges and dams." Then a druggist because of the ice cream and the "smell of old drugstores." Then a cartoonist, a doctor and a teacher—"I'd still like to be a teacher because it's the most inspiring occupation I know except motherhood and I'm not built for that."

Then a poet, novelist, and finally newspaperman — "because I thought it would be romantic and still do, some days."

In high school, Boyle jerked sodas for a druggist. As Boyle began to eat up all the ice cream profits, the boss began searching for other fields for Boyle to conquer. It was the druggist who knew the chief copy boy at the Kansas City AP office. It was the druggist who suggested Hal might want to look him up.

Boyle started with the AP as office boy in 1928, departed long enough to earn degrees in journalism and English at the University of Missouri, worked as reporter for AP in Kansas City, St. Louis and New York, and took off as a war correspondent in 1942.

He landed with Patton at Casablanca and Sicily, Clark at Salerno and jeeped with the First Army from Normandy to the Elbe, moved later to the Pacific war zone and returned in 1950 to combat in Korea.

It took several weeks to realize he had won a Pulitzer for his war reporting in 1944. Among other awards, the one Boyle is most proud of was given to him by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for his coverage of Korea—most proud because Gen. Omar Bradley made the presentation with these words:

"There are few men who understand the American soldier and how he feels as well as you. There are even fewer who can write about him with such interest, such understanding, such compassion."

He has covered both ends of a world war and the worst of a small war. In war and peace, he will tell you with the pride of a geographic name-dropper, he has travelled in 63 countries and is ready to document the boast at the first raised eyebrow.

While he is not famed as a methodical planner, he does think a man should pick his own epitaph.

His own choice: "Safe at Home."

Farm motor trucks in the United States numbered less than 1,000 in 1910, but reached 2 million by 1953.

Weeky Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanksgiving Day is still a week off but the turkey which symbolizes the holiday for most folks already has taken over the supermarket spotlight.

Many stores are featuring the bird in their advertisements at prices that will hold through next Wednesday.

Although prices naturally vary from section to section, for comparative purposes it might be noted that one major chain was offering 10 to 16-pound hen turkeys at 41 cents a pound, oven-ready, and 18 to 24 pound tom turkeys at 37 cents a pound, oven-ready, in the New York metropolitan area.

Higher prices for some other meats also acted as a lever on shoppers to buy turkeys. Frying chickens were two to six cents a pound higher in many sections this week, while pork chops were up in the same range in a smaller number of places. Eggs, too, are higher again, but only by a cent or two.

Outstanding vegetable buys are lettuce, endive, escarole, egg plant and radishes. In the good buy column are cucumbers, peppers and such vegetables from nearby fields as cauliflower, brussels sprouts, cabbage, potatoes and onions. The last two—Thanksgiving Day staples in many homes—are augmented by good supplies of sweet potatoes and Idaho baked potatoes.

Apples, pears, oranges, grapefruit, tangerines and grapes all are low priced and plentiful.

The naive Boyle who thinks he will weigh 170 again, the proud Boyle who, on losing a single ounce, introduces himself as "the new tiger man."

And always, in a partly hidden room, there is the Boyle with the half-sung heartsong, the sweet sadness, the dreams that got away, the vague loneliness, the Boyle eternally aware that every man born of woman must die, that each new day is both an arrival and departure, that even Peter Pan would have grown old writing a daily column.

By a mysterious, suspenseful chemistry, these separate Boyles somehow manage to coalesce every weekday into the written word. And the words, over the years, have added up to a Pulitzer prize and other awards, to columns dramatized on television and reprinted in magazines and anthologies, to the respect of fellow writers and the devotion of his readers who yearn, sigh, laugh and cry with him, readers who frame columns on their wall and have others engraved on personal greeting cards.

Harold Vincent Boyle spends 22 hours a day, awake or asleep, thinking, worrying about his column and two hours actually writing it. Boyle at the typewriter is a horrible sight. It is the time, he says, when "you just take a cold chisel, put it to your head, and start quarrying."

Boyle at the typewriter, with 60 or 90 minutes to go, is taut, silent, stiff, intense, measuring each word carefully, writing, X-ing out, rephrasing, sweating into a shining simplicity.

He can't work without chewing murderously on his cigar, stopping compulsively to comb his hair or take a deep breath like a pitcher nervously eying the batter and that small strike zone. Only a writer knows how small that strike zone is.

This is the Boyle who sees nothing, hears nothing, hasn't a friend in the world, is a child alone in a forest of dark terror. This is where all retreat, all delay, all distraction must end. This is the wall, and Boyle writes every morning with his back to it.

"I've got to get a few columns ahead, get a backlog," says Boyle, the optimist.

"I can only write on deadline," says Boyle, the realist. "Emily Dickinson said, 'wine is the gift of screws.' I find the deadline squeezes the best out of you in a hurry."

From the screws of deadline and the torture of self-doubt has come a kaleidoscopic procession in print—portraits, vignettes, fables, homemade proverbs, holidays remembered, interviews, personal experiences, faded dreams, lingering hopes.

A GI dead in Normandy, "at final ease stretched in eternal langor." . . . In South Carolina, "a tar-papered shack wearying a hill." . . . Of October, when "everything that walks the earth feels an amber thrill." . . . Of the triumph of an Irishman on St. Pat's Day, when he hears "the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity . . . the high song of the turning spheres, the dim lullaby of the worm in its cocoon . . ."

Of a childless couple named Boyle yearning for a baby . . . Of looking into the mirror on your 40th birthday, searching for the boy that used to be, finding "all that was left of him was his eyes—two blue pools of doubt, two wells of childhood reluctant to cloud over." . . . Of the time Internal Revenue called for an explanation and Boyle tried to plead "temporary insanity . . . ." Of the adoption of a daughter (Tracy Ann Boyle is now 4), trying to make her realize she was a chosen child, picked out from all the earth's millions.

But Tracy Ann refuses to absorb the meaning of adoption. "Sometime, though," Boyle concluded, "she will ask a question. But not now. Not now."

These well-ordered phrases are born every morning at a monumentally disordered desk, usually piled more than a foot high with unopened mail, papers, books, magazines, forgotten shopping list. Boyle always has a fancy explanation for the clutter.

"Rather have the chaos on the desk than in my head." Or: "A clean desk is the sign of a frightened mind."

This, of course, is malarkey. A clean desk requires a decisive owner. You must be able to decide whether to file, answer or throw away a letter. Boyle loathes decisions.

The Boyles live simply in a four-room Manhattan apartment overlooking the East River.

The Boyles own no car because Hal never learned to drive one. But they do have two bathrooms—a fact which Hal cites as a milestone in his life and uses to explain his attitude toward money.

"What more does a man need?" he asks. "I don't need a lot of possessions. I'm just a boy from Kansas City, the son of a butcher. I'm afraid of the impressive and suspicious of the elegant. I know only one headwaiter by name and, after 20 years in this town, he has just learned mine. At home, where I grew up, there were seven of us waiting to use one bathroom. Now I have two. How many more does a family need?"

His hobbies are "brooding and watching people and trying to understand them," thinking up titles for books he'll never write, shopping for suits he won't buy until Frances sees them, counting the columns left to do before retirement, and day-dreaming.

"A writer is always making up little dreams in which he's the hero or the villain. But he always stops short, when he dreams the villain role, for fear he may be caught. The only revenge I take on people is in my mind. At the last moment, even in my dreams, I have to show them charity.

"My fears? The biggest thing I have to fight is a feeling of insufficiency—that I won't be able to muster the talent to do the work the way I'd like. Also, I have a fear that people will think I'm ridiculous, or a loudmouth, or a showoff, when actually I'm afraid most of the time.

"Hates? I hate people who throw their weight around, who try to rob a man of his dignity. Will Rogers used to say, 'I never met a man I didn't like.' I can't say that.

"But I can say I never met a human being I didn't feel sorry for. I think this is a hard world and I think every human in it, at one time or another, has a hard time. The thing I admire most is people who face life with courage, loyalty and a sense of humor."

Boyle caught the writing virus relatively late. Growing up in Kansas City, he first wanted to be an engineer and "go around the world in high leather boots, building bridges and dams." Then a druggist because of the ice cream and the "smell of old drugstores." Then a cartoonist, a doctor and a teacher—"I'd still like to be a teacher because it's the most inspiring occupation I know except motherhood and I'm not built for that."

Then a poet, novelist, and finally newspaperman — "because I thought it would be romantic and still do, some days."

In high school, Boyle jerked sodas for a druggist. As Boyle began to eat up all the ice cream profits, the boss began searching for other fields for Boyle to conquer. It was the druggist who knew the chief copy boy at the Kansas City AP office. It was the druggist who suggested Hal might want to look him up.

Boyle started with the AP as office boy in 1928, departed long enough to earn degrees in journalism and English at the University of Missouri, worked as reporter for AP in Kansas City, St. Louis and New York, and took off as a war correspondent in 1942.

He landed with Patton at Casablanca and Sicily, Clark at Salerno and jeeped with the First Army from Normandy to the Elbe, moved later to the Pacific war zone and returned in 1950 to combat in Korea.

It took several weeks to realize he had won a Pulitzer for his war reporting in 1944. Among other awards, the one Boyle is most proud of was given to him by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for his coverage of Korea—most proud because Gen. Omar Bradley made the presentation with these words:

"There are few men who understand the American soldier and how he feels as well as you. There are even fewer who can write about him with such interest, such understanding, such compassion."

He has covered both ends of a world war and the worst of a small war. In war and peace, he will tell you with the pride of a geographic name-dropper, he has travelled in 63 countries and is ready to document the boast at the first raised eyebrow.

While he is not famed as a methodical planner, he does think a man should pick his own epitaph.

Farm motor trucks in the United States numbered less than 1,000 in 1910, but reached 2 million by 1953.

Weeky Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanksgiving Day is still a week off but the turkey which symbolizes the holiday for most folks already has taken over the supermarket spotlight.

Many stores are featuring the bird in their advertisements at prices that will hold through next Wednesday.

Although prices naturally vary from section to section, for comparative purposes it might be noted that one major chain was offering 10 to 16-pound hen turkeys at 41 cents a pound, oven-ready, and 18 to 24 pound tom turkeys at 37 cents a pound, oven-ready, in the New York metropolitan area.

Higher prices for some other meats also acted as a lever on shoppers to buy turkeys. Frying chickens were two to six cents a pound higher in many sections this week, while pork chops were up in the same range in a smaller number of places. Eggs, too, are higher again, but only by a cent or two.

Outstanding vegetable buys are lettuce, endive, escarole, egg plant and radishes. In the good buy column are cucumbers, peppers and such vegetables from nearby fields as cauliflower, brussels sprouts, cabbage, potatoes and onions. The last two—Thanksgiving Day staples in many homes—are augmented by good supplies of sweet potatoes and Idaho baked potatoes.

Apples, pears, oranges, grapefruit, tangerines and grapes all are low priced and plentiful.

Many Ohio Officials Slated To Greet Ike in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — President Eisenhower will be greeted by top state, county and city officials when he arrives here next Tuesday afternoon to deliver a major speech on national and international security.

Heading the greeters will be Gov. C. William O'Neill. He has announced that he will set aside the entire day to be certain to be on hand when the President arrives at Cleveland-Hopkins Airport about 4 p. m.

The officials will accompany Eisenhower in a motorcade to the downtown area. Mrs. Eisenhower probably will not accompany the President to Cleveland.

Others expected to be on hand include U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker, former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey and Mayor Anthony J. Celebrezze.

Humphrey will introduce the President for his speech at Public Hall that night. It will be telecast and broadcast nationally.

U. S. Sen. Frank J. Lausche is visiting friends on the West Coast and it is not certain whether he will be here for the President's visit.

Curtis Lee Smith, president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of arrangements for the visit. Cuyahoga County Republican chairman A.L. (Sonny) DeMaioribus said party leaders are not participating in the arrangements because of the non-political nature of the President's visit, but that they undoubtedly would be represented.

Smith estimated that about 12,000 seats will be available at Public Hall for the President's speech. Admission will be by ticket only and the demand has been "terrific," he said. Distribution of the tickets will be handled by 20 civic and professional groups.

The speech will be the third in a series delivered by the President in various sections of the country to assure the nation that United States military and technological forces are able to compete with Russia despite Russia's jump on this country in delivering an earth satellite into outer space.

His subject will be "The Value of International Cooperation in Our Nation's Security." The speech will be televised "live" by the Columbia Broadcasting Co. from 9 to 9:30 p.m. E.S.T., and broadcast by radio networks at the same time. The American Broadcasting Co. will televise the talk on film at 10:30 p.m. and the National Broadcasting Co. at 11:15 p.m.

Eisenhower is scheduled to be flown back to Washington immediately after the talk.

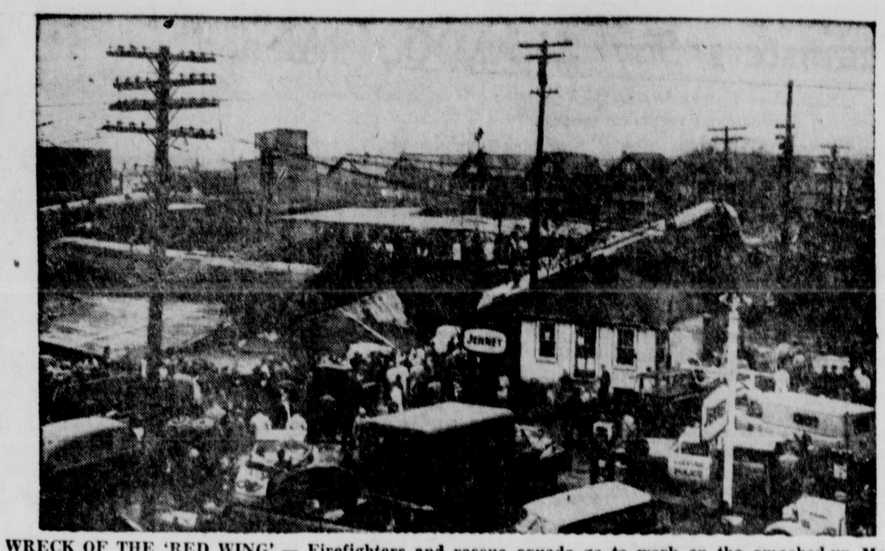
The President's two previous speeches in the series were at Washington Nov. 7 and in Oklahoma City Nov. 13.

Smith said that applications for tickets should be mailed to the Chamber of Commerce offices by Friday. Persons not affiliated with organizations in charge of ticket distribution may request two tickets by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the chamber before that time.

"We have been flooded with requests for tickets from Clevelanders and groups in nearby communities," Smith said. "We can't guarantee to fill all requests, but all that can be taken care of will be in the mail by Friday night."

Groups that will handle the ticket distribution are the Cleveland Advertising Club, Cleveland Treasurers Club, Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Cleveland Convention and Trade Show Bureau, Cleveland Executives Assn., Junior Chamber of Commerce, City Club, Citizens League, World Trade Assn., Smaller Business of America, Inc., Council on World Affairs, Cleveland Personnel Assn., Cleveland Industrial Relations Assn., Cleveland Training Directors Assn., Cleveland Works Managers Assn., Cleveland Sales Executives Club, Cleveland Engineering Society, Cleveland Farmers Club and the northeastern Ohio chapter of the Public Relations Society of America.

President Eisenhower's last visit here was Oct. 1, 1956, during his campaign for re-election. Nearly 100,000 persons saw him then—50,000 at Public Square, where he spoke at the time, and 25,000 to 30,000 along the route of the motorcade from the airport.



WRECK OF THE 'RED WING' — Firefighters and rescue squads go to work on the smashed-up Montreal-to-Boston express train "Red Wing" in Medford, Mass. Mansfield Loses Link To Blue Cross

CLEVELAND (AP) — A dispute over the cost of caring for patients has resulted in Pepoles Hospital of Mansfield being dropped by the Blue Cross organization here.

James A. Berne, associate director of the hospitalization plan here, said Wednesday a semi-annual audit of the Mansfield hospital's books showed a per diem cost about $5 lower than the amount charged.

But David J. Davies, vice president and manager of Peoples Hospital, said:

"Blue Cross just hasn't been paying enough."

Terming the Blue Cross action regrettable, Davies said: "We just can't go on operating at a loss."

The hospital administrator said Peoples is "in the same position as a number of other hospitals. Blue Cross has just taken on more than it can handle."

He said Blue Cross apparently has decided to drop the hospital rather than increase its charges to policyholders.

The actual cost, said Davies, is $16.58 per day per patient. The Blue Cross audit determined the daily rates should be $13.64 under one arrangement or $13.78 under another, he said.

The hospital will not suffer financially, Davies said. About 27 per cent of the patients at the 110-bed hospital use the Blue Cross plan, he said.

Berne said it was the first time Blue Cross here has taken action in such a case since the program was started here in 1934. Blue Cross contracts cover 58 hospitals in northeastern Ohio.

In addition to national holidays, Texas also observes Texas Independence Day, San Jacinto Day, and the birthdays of Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis.

Queen's Husband Seen Planning Press Talk

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Herald has predicted the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, will make history by holding a news conference in Buckingham Palace in February.

"Friends of his told me that he is quite determined about it and has overridden solid palace opposition," a columnist reported, adding, "His experiences with the Canadian and American reporters on his recent tour with the Queen have influenced him."

Mansfield Loses Link To Blue Cross

CLEVELAND (AP) — A dispute over the cost of caring for patients has resulted in Pepoles Hospital of Mansfield being dropped by the Blue Cross organization here.

James A. Berne, associate director of the hospitalization plan here, said Wednesday a semi-annual audit of the Mansfield hospital's books showed a per diem cost about $5 lower than the amount charged.

But David J. Davies, vice president and manager of Peoples Hospital, said:

"Blue Cross just hasn't been paying enough."

Terming the Blue Cross action regrettable, Davies said: "We just can't go on operating at a loss."

The hospital administrator said Peoples is "in the same position as a number of other hospitals. Blue Cross has just taken on more than it can handle."

He said Blue Cross apparently has decided to drop the hospital rather than increase its charges to policyholders.

The actual cost, said Davies, is $16.58 per day per patient. The Blue Cross audit determined the daily rates should be $13.64 under one arrangement or $13.78 under another, he said.

The hospital will not suffer financially, Davies said. About 27 per cent of the patients at the 110-bed hospital use the Blue Cross plan, he said.

Berne said it was the first time Blue Cross here has taken action in such a case since the program was started here in 1934. Blue Cross contracts cover 58 hospitals in northeastern Ohio.

In addition to national holidays, Texas also observes Texas Independence Day, San Jacinto Day, and the birthdays of Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis.

More Efficiency In Farming Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will remain under pressure next year to increase the size and efficiency of their operations, the Agriculture Department says.

This pressure, which has been felt several years, reflects a squeeze between rising farm production costs and rather stable farm product prices. Only by cutting production costs and by increasing production on each acre of land or by getting more milk from individual cows have many farmers been able to show net incomes.

Looking ahead on the 1958 agricultural finance outlook, the department said in a report that this situation will cause farmers to take a cautious attitude toward spending and debt.

The department said operating and living expenses of farmers will be difficult to reduce, and that the demand for short - term credit probably will continue to be strong. The report said the supply of credit will remain adequate for most needs, but that lenders and creditors may again be somewhat conservative.

THE DEPARTMENT said the probable effects of these various factors on the prospective financial condition of farmers as a whole will be: (1) a further rise in debt but at a slower rate than in recent years; (2) a relatively low level of delinquency and very few foreclosures; (3) little increase, if any, in the amount of financial savings; and (4) generally strong net worth of positions of many, mainly because of the higher values of land and other capital investments.

In a separate report, the department said today it is likely that Americans will consume about 15 per cent more cigarettes in 1965 than this year.

But the use of tobacco in making cigarettes may not increase more than 5 per cent, the agency said in an outlook report.

The forecast of the 15 per cent increase in use of cigarettes was based upon the assumption that the controversial health aspect of cigarette smoking will have no prolonged adverse effects in consumption.

It also assumes that the number of male smokers will increase about 10 per cent and female smokers at least 33 per cent.

Consumption of smoking tobacco in pipes and in roll-your-own cigarettes, which has been declining steadily since 1950, is expected by the department to drop another 40 per cent by 1965.

Likewise, a further reduction of 15 per cent in consumption of chewing tobacco was forecast.

Cops Use Girl 'Decoy', Lose in Liquor Case

COLUMBUS (AP) — A Cleveland tavern operator has been cleared of contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old girl police used as a "decoy" to buy liquor.

The State Supreme Court Wednesday upheld an Appellate Court reversal of the conviction of Theodore Miclau Jr.

"Where a minor enters a bar in the company and custody of policemen for the purpose of purchasing intoxicating liquor," the high court ruled, "there is obviously no delinquency."

Teamsters Say $150,000 Needed for Its Legal Fund

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Harold J. Gibbons of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters says the union hopes to raise only about $150,000 for a legal defense fund.

"If we could get $150,000 I would feel very happy," said Gibbons, an international vice president of the union.

"It would be used in case any of us got into any kind of legal troubles so that we would have some kind of financial assistance."

Gibbons said only full-time paid officers of the union would contribute to the fund and those participating would give a $1,000 promissory note to be paid off at the rate of $10 a week.

"A number of us thought about it and kicked the idea around because if we lose a paycheck we are in trouble," Gibbons said. "The plans developed from a series of talks and informal conversations."

The fund would be administered by a board of trustees which has not yet been named, Gibbons said.

Asked whether the fund would be used to help provide legal aid for James R. Hoffa, the union's president-elect, Gibbons said:

"I think Mr. Hoffa has raised some money of his own. He has mortgaged his home. Obviously he would be entitled to consideration. I haven't even discussed it with him and it will not be raised in terms of Jimmy Hoffa."

Gibbons said no money has been raised yet and that there will be no widespread solicitation. Requests for contributions will be by personal contacts, he said.

Gibbons denied a Chicago Tribune report that the fund may reach two million dollars.

In Detroit, Hoffa denied any fund was being raised for his benefit and predicted the one reported by Gibbons would total only $75,000 to $100,000.

"It won't be used for my defense in pending trials," Hoffa said. "It will be used for the benefit of business agents."

He said the union expected a wave of litigation involving officials and business agents, especially if it is expelled from the AFL-CIO next month. He didn't elaborate.

KEYS TO THE FUTURE—These three men are expected to head West Europe's key supranational institutions: Jean Rey (left), Belgian minister of economy, probable first president of European Economic community; Dr. Franz Bluecher (center), former first chancellor of West Germany, to be chairman of the high authority of the 5-year-old European Coal and Steel community; and Louis Armand (right) of France, scheduled for presidency of the European Atomic community. "Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 25 and very much in love with Molly, who is 45. We are both divorced and I have known her for two years. She has two grown sons, one my age who was a good friend of mine—that's how I got to know Molly.

She is such good company that many times when a group is going dancing, her son insists on taking her along. And she keeps everybody laughing all evening with her great sense of humor. She dances well too.

At first I considered her just a wonderful friend and we candidly showed great mutual liking. Then things changed. So gradually that I hardly knew how it happened, I realized a strong physical attraction to her. I repressed the thought not wishing to lose her friendship; and told myself that I was crazy.

After several months I finally told her that I loved her and wanted to marry her, and was overjoyed when she confessed that she loved me too. Well, when we told her sons, they both blew up; and my family thought it ridiculous, too. In the face of all this opposition we agreed to quit, and not see each other any more.

Lately we've been meeting again, but her sons don't know it. What can we do? Ignore their protests and marry anyway? Or abide by their opinions and go separate ways? I know we could be happy if people would accept our marriage with tolerance. On the other hand, we know that derisive remarks and a disapproving atmosphere aren't good for any marriage.

We don't want to feel ostracized by family and friends, as if we were a couple of silly fools.

R. S.

DEAR R. S.: This striking infatuation between you and Molly is a defective sort of attraction. And the majority opinion of family and friends is probably right, that it can't be processed into happy marriage.

As for what you mean to each other, I think the major element that fostered fervid romance is the fact that you two were social misfits in the particular group that brought you together.

Molly is falling far behind her appropriate bracket in going dancing with her son and the latter's friends, and keeping them laughing all evening with her high key humor. Just as you, too, are somewhat out of step with normalcy, in being already married and divorced at age 25, and back with the free wheeling younger crowd.

The past experience in common, of being divorced, was a sort of psychological link between you and Molly in that situation. It led to a sense of special intimacy, of sex attraction, since both of you were aware of being lonely and incomplete, in the midst of an adolescent social routine. This "outsider" feeling is part of the price of failure in marriage.

Also it's safe to say that Molly was weeks or months ahead of you, in entertaining a hidden hunger for sweetheart intimacy, despite the generation's difference in ages. And very likely her hopes and feelings in this respect were communicated to you on the unconscious level—probably by design and intent—"so gradually," as you say, "that you hardly know how it happened."

As a divorced man, you hardly qualify as an injured innocent in stalemate. But the fact that you proposed marriage, whereas Molly has permitted an interim affair, suggests that she probably hasn't really wanted more than this. She probably realized from the first that marriage simply wouldn't work—but she has contributed to the illusion of seriously considering it, in order to save face with you, I think.

As I see the picture, your involvement with Molly stems from the same roots as your divorce. You are a confused self-indulgent character, taking paths of least resistance; and to get on the beam of worthwhile living, you need both psychiatric and religious guidance.

Good Public Relations Said To Be Needed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The need for good public relations was never so great as it is today, says Reuben B. Robertson of Hamilton, Ohio, a former deputy defense secretary.

Robertson, president of the Champion Paper and Fibre Co. at Hamilton, addressed a conference of the Public Relations Society of America here Wednesday.

"There is a great need for your help," he told the delegates. "The American people must have the facts and information needed to help them express their opinions on a knowledgeable basis."

Because we live in an "insecure world," Robertson continued, "our defense and mutual security programs probably have as great an impact on the people in the United States, and throughout the free world, as any single factor in their existence. The vast expenditures required by our defense and mutual security have a significant effect on the economy of the U.S. and practically every nation in the free world."

He added:

"The problems and changes in defense and mutual security in the 10 years ahead will throw a heavy burden upon all communications media if we are going to have the degree of knowledge and understanding on the part of the American people and the people of the free world in meeting any challenge or crisis."

Away with open flour bins and unwrapped bread! Away with unpasteurized milk delivered in unsanitary cans! No longer shall meat be sold without government inspection and grading!

Those were the words of clubwomen 50 years ago. Today the 11 million members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs still are crying out for all that is good in their material and spiritual lives.

Women the world over are emerging from their shells to take an active part in community life. Wherever I have gone on my numerous trips abroad, I have found that women are eager to do their part.

The General Federation, the largest group of organized women in the world, has clubs in 58 other countries. Just recently we have welcomed into membership the Deutsche Hausfrauen Bund with a membership of 150,000 in clubs all over Germany.

Another new club is the League for the Civic Formation of Women at Mendoza, Argentina. That makes four clubs in the Argentine. Next February the General Federation will hold a "Hemispheric Solidarity Seminar" in Buenos Aires. The seminar will bring together women from all over South America to exchange ideas and discuss various problems.

The only completely effective way of knowing world problems is by travel and association with people in other parts of the world. The "person to person" exchange of ideas is the infallible method.

The members of the more than 15,000 clubs in the General Federation in the United States are keenly interested in the preservation of our American heritage, but they also know that today world problems come to the breakfast table through the press, radio and television. While working for all that is good in American life, they also believe in helping women the world over in order to establish and maintain a lasting peace.

Pennsy Rail Proift Down, Take Is Up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania Railroad profits are down though gross revenue is up.

America's biggest railroad reports earnings for the first 10 months of 1957 were 42 per cent below last year.

These earnings, the railroad said, were $21,291,731 or $1.62 a share for the period compared with net income of $36,655,498 or $2.78 a share last year.

Gross revenue for the 10 month period went from $826,268,891 in 1956 to $839,433,412 this year.

But this was offset, the railroad said, by an increase in expenses of more than $28 million.

Marlon Brando Versatile With No Two Roles Alike

By ARMAND ARCHERD
Central Press Association Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Marlon Brando is one actor who will never allow Hollywood's producers to type him. If anything, they are begging him to play a role in which he'll resemble his ordinarily-pleasant, somewhat-handsome seld — and that's not easy, because Marlon wants to play everything and everyone.

You must hand it to young Mr. B. He doesn't permit nationality or race to stand in the way of his acting ambitions. His recent and future record bears him out. In "Teahouse of the August Moon," he donned painful and grotesque makeup to play the Oriental comic-tragic hero, Sakini. Brando also adopted the proper dialect and knowledge of the yellow man's customs for the role.

In "Sayonara," Brando, who was 4-F'd because of a bad knee during World War II, plays the dashing, Virginia-born son of a four-star general. He is a third generation West Pointer, an ace in the Korean war, and bears the average set of prejudices against our former enemy, the Japanese.

MARLON LAUNCHES his own film company this year with its first production, "Commanchero," a western. However, as you might expect from him, it is not the "typical western." Also, he's not another Jimmy Stewart-type, or Gary Cooper-ish cowboy. He's a half-breed, a Mexican-Indian cowboy. The race problem rears its ugly head prominently in the film—when Brando meets up with the rancher's lovely daughter.

By the time "Young Lions" and "Commanchero" hit the nation's screens, Brando hopes the public will be more accustomed to seeing stories about inter-racial love and marriage. The year 1957 in Hollywood could almost be titled the "Year of Miscegenation," judging by the sudden flurry of films with an inter-racial theme. "Sayonara," perhaps, is the only pleasant one of such films.

Inter-racial love and marriage have come a long way in the theater since "Madame Butterfly." In real life, since 1947, there have been close to 10,000 marriages between Americans (mostly servicemen) and Japanese, and easily 10 times as many romances.

Even with this kind of documentation, "Sayonara's" producer, William Goetz, and director Joshua Logan were aware that American audiences would need a greater understanding of the Japanese people in order to sympathize with the poignant love story in James Michener's tale, "Sayonara."

"In order to tell this great love story," Logan explained, "we had to make it clear that the moral and emotional conflicts that arise are the result of more than a difference of race. They involve the complete clash of two widely divergent cultures."

TO HELP American movie-going audiences to understand this, Logan filmed extensive footage in Japan's theaters, gardens, countrysides, etc. He wanted to capture the people as they live. Brando, on the other hand, knows them so well he objected to all "that sweetening up" in the film!

IN ANY CASE, Logan was certain Americans could understand the romance. Miiko Tzaka, the American-born Japanese girl with whom Brando falls in love in the film, is a beautiful gal in any language or country!

Ironically, the Seattle-born Taka, who debuts in this film, fears her future in movies. First of all, she says, "What leading man can follow Marlon Brando?" And secondly, she doesn't want to be typed in Japanese roles! You can see the Brando influence took effect after one movie together.

Brando, constantly full of surprises, may one day play the average American boy—opposite the average American gal.

"Yes," he smiles — "but what are they?"

SET TO RETIRE—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, 70, has announced in London he will resign his post as Deputy Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces in Europe on Sept. 20, 1958. The distinguished soldier will also retire from active duty in the British army then. (International)

Marlon Brando Versatile With No Two Roles Alike

By ARMAND ARCHERD
Central Press Association Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — Marlon Brando is one actor who will never allow Hollywood's producers to type him. If anything, they are begging him to play a role in which he'll resemble his ordinarily-pleasant, somewhat-handsome self — and that's not easy, because Marlon wants to play everything and everyone.

You must hand it to young Mr. B. He doesn't permit nationality or race to stand in the way of his acting ambitions. His recent and future record bears him out. In "Teahouse of the August Moon," he donned painful and grotesque makeup to play the Oriental comic-tragic hero, Sakini. Brando also adopted the proper dialect and knowledge of the yellow man's customs for the role.

In "Sayonara," Brando, who was 4-F'd because of a bad knee during World War II, plays the dashing, Virginia-born son of a four-star general. He is a third generation West Pointer, an ace in the Korean war, and bears the average set of prejudices against our former enemy, the Japanese.

MARLON LAUNCHES his own film company this year with its first production, "Commanchero," a western. However, as you might expect from him, it is not the "typical western." Also, he's not another Jimmy Stewart-type, or Gary Cooper-ish cowboy. He's a half-breed, a Mexican-Indian cowboy. The race problem rears its ugly head prominently in the film —when Brando meets up with the rancher's lovely daughter.

By the time "Young Lions" and "Commanchero" hit the nation's screens, Brando hopes the public will be more accustomed to seeing stories about inter-racial love and marriage. The year 1957 in Hollywood could almost be titled the "Year of Miscegenation," judging by the sudden flurry of films with an inter-racial theme. "Sayonara," perhaps, is the only pleasant one of such films.

Inter-racial love and marriage have come a long way in the theater since "Madame Butterfly." In real life, since 1947, there have been close to 10,000 marriages between Americans (mostly servicemen) and Japanese, and easily 10 times as many romances.

Even with this kind of documentation, "Sayonara's" producer, William Goetz, and director Joshua Logan were aware that American audiences would need a greater understanding of the Japanese people in order to sympathize with the poignant love story in James Michener's tale, "Sayonara."

"In order to tell this great love story," Logan explained, "we had to make it clear that the moral and emotional conflicts that arise are the result of more than a difference of race. They involve the complete clash of two widely divergent cultures."

TO HELP American movie-going audiences to understand this, Logan filmed extensive footage in Japan's theaters, gardens, countrysides, etc. He wanted to capture the people as they live. Brando, on the other hand, knows them so well he objected to all "that sweetening up" in the film!

IN ANY CASE, Logan was certain Americans could understand the romance. Miiko Tzaka, the American-born Japanese girl with whom Brando falls in love in the film, is a beautiful gal in any language or country!

Ironically, the Seattle-born Taka, who debuts in this film, fears her future in movies. First of all, she says, "What leading man can follow Marlon Brando?" And secondly, she doesn't want to be typed in Japanese roles! You can see the Brando influence took effect after one movie together.

Brando, constantly full of surprises, may one day play the average American boy—opposite the average American gal.

"Yes," he smiles — "but what are they?"

SET TO RETIRE—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, 70, has announced in London he will resign his post as Deputy Supreme Commander of the Allied Forces in Europe on Sept. 20, 1958. The distinguished soldier will also retire from active duty in the British army then. (International)

Cash-Carry Stores Study Charge Plans

Penney To Test Credit Deal; Grant's Already Offering Installments

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Changing home budget habits are pushing charge account and instalment buying into old strongholds of cash and carry.

Early next year J. C. Penney will test credit sales in a few of its 1,700 stores which have been strictly cash and carry since its founding in 1902.

W. T. Grant is putting an instalment credit plan into 86 new stores this year, bringing its entire chain of 699 into the plan. It tested the idea on a pilot basis in Atlanta, Ga., in 1946, and gradually extended it to other stores and regions.

Credit buying has increased everywhere since the war. Young persons in particular budget their income to fit instalment payments. Rising prices and merchandise upgrading have put many purchases out of the reach of the old cash and carry customer. The trend to larger families also spurs use of credit for mass outfitting.

So the cash and carry chains appealing to lower budget groups have found the department store charge account systems an increasing competition.

Officials of Grant's say their credit plan has been used by more than one million customers. Last year 33½ million dollars worth of merchandise, or 8.8 per cent of total sales, were charged.

Penney's hasn't decided yet which type of credit plan to use or where the tests will be made.

The Grant plan differs sharply from the old fashioned charge account because the customer pays a prefixed sum at regular intervals regardless of the size of purchases from time to time.

It works this way: each store runs its own system under the inspection of the five regional supervisors. A store official studies the applicant's income prospects, buying needs and reputation for paying much as any credit manager does.

Then one of several size coupon books is issued, the coupons ranging from 25 cents to $5, say, so that the store clerk can tear out the necessary amount at time of the purchase of goods.

The customer pays a fixed sum either each week or each month, until the entire book is paid for, rather than having the entire charge of the purchase coming due the first of the month as with a regular charge account.

When the book is used up the customer can go back for another even if he has further payments to make. His income prospects are reviewed to see if he can afford further credit. This helps the store hold down the delinquency rate and helps keep the customer from going beyond his depth.

The service charge varies with the rate of repayment but averages around 10 per cent. Officials explain that this way there is no general rise of prices to meet the credit plan costs, and so the cash customer isn't penalized.

The big demand for credit comes in three spurts — Christmas, Easter, and when families are being fitted out as a group for school and winter.

Delinquencies have been low.

South Africans Going For Rock 'n Roll Now

NEW YORK (AP)—Rock 'n' roll is taking over in South Africa, according to a Zulu disc jockey.

King Edward Masinga, 41, who conducts a daily Zulu language program in Durban, is in this country on a special State Department grant to study American drama and broadcasting.

Masinga said his program in Durban features the old folk music, but that it is losing out to rock 'n' roll. Even the natives in the back country, he said, buy rock 'n' roll records.

Sydney, Australia, has a population of about two million. That is nearly one-fifth of the population of Australia.

Grant officials say, Strikes and layoffs have hit stores in some areas, but most customers arrange for smaller payments for a time and try to pay up arrears quickly when on the payroll again.

One store cites a customer who kept up his payment after being sent to prison. He said he wanted to protect his good name.

Potential U. S. Scientists Claimed 'Dying on the Vine'

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Editor's Note: The following is the fourth in a series of articles outlining the advancement of scientific study in America.

AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of tomorrow's potential scientists are dying on the vine.

Educators and scientists cite numerous reasons:

Science and mathematics courses are not stressed enough in schools.

Mathematics is a cornerstone of science, but many youngsters think of algebra as a horrid word. Arithmetic often is taught boringly.

"Any good student is irked to death by the memorization and formulas and routineness with which science is taught these days," said Dr. R. W. Lefler, professor of physics and education at Purdue University.

We suffer a shortage of high school science teachers. Teachers' salaries generally "are a national disgrace and evidence of public indifference toward learning," declares Dr. B. D. Thomas, director of the Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio.

Numerous teen-agers, a Purdue survey finds, regard scientists as wicked, as longhairs or squares, as unable or incapable of living a normal life, or of enjoying life.

Many students avoid science courses as hard, or for squares.

Many bright students can't afford college.

High school and college students often avoid science because they see higher pay and rewards going to careers in selling, advertising, medicine, business, entertainment and other fields.

Some scientists make very good incomes. Some are notoriously underpaid, especially in teaching and basic research, and especially by standards of their contributions to human welfare and progress.

Half of U.S. scientists made less than $6,525 annually in 1954 and 1955, the National Science Foundation reports from a questionnaire of 50,000 men and women.

Median salaries — meaning that half made more, and half made less—were: physicists, $7,275; geologists, $7,250; mathematicians, $6,300; biologists, $6,275; meteorologists $6,050; astronomers $5,950, and psychologists, $5,850.

Jobs in industry generally pay higher.

The American Chemical Society reports starting median salaries this year range from $8,100 for Ph.Ds in chemical engineering and $7,800 for Ph.Ds in chemistry to $5,500 and $5,200 for those with bachelor degrees in chemical engineering and chemistry respectively.

These averages cover both industry and teaching, but the society said that Ph.Ds going into industry averaged 38 per cent higher paychecks than those going into teaching.

Unknown Benefactor

HONOLULU, (AP) — A sailor aboard the transport Renville has his wallet and $200 back, but he hasn't any idea who his pretty benefactor was.

The sailor, George Jacobs, lost his wallet in the sand at Waikiki. It contained $400.

A young blonde woman, out for an early dip, found it at 7 a. m. She called Pearl Harbor and was told the Revnille was leaving at 8:30 a. m. The woman rushed to the Harbor, and arrived as the ship was casting off lines.

Jacobs lowered a bucket on a line and she dropped the wallet in.

The ship sailed away and the woman drove away.

Do-It-Yourself Builder

EL RENO, Okla. (AP)— Veldon Grudier of El Reno doesn't do much flying he's becoming an expert at building aircraft—in his home shop.

Grudier, who has built two sports planes and helped construct a glider, now is in the midst of another project. He's building a gyrocopter.

The land area of Canada is 3,577,000 square miles.

Hunting with guns is big business. In 1955 11 million hunters in the U. S. spent 937 million dollars on game and trap shooting.

Trains Strike Twice

CYNTHIANA, Ky., (AP)— Charles Palmer's timing was too good: his auto was hit by two trains.

The car stalled on double tracks and Palmer, hearing a train approach, bailed out. The train hit the vehicle and knocked it into the path of another from the south.

The trains were delayed only slightly, but Palmer was delayed considerably. He was arrested for drunken driving.

Using Taxi To Chase Gull Proves Costly

The gull, with a fishhook stuck in its beak, has been flying around the seafront for a week. Bovey, an employe of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has been trying to catch the bird and remove the hook.

"Everytime somebody sees it they call us and I speed to the spot in a taxi," said Bovey. "We have spent $7 in taxi fares, but each time the bird has flown."

Dayton Janitor Held In Theft of Narcotics

DAYTON (AP)—Dayton police are holding a 30-year-old janitor they said admitted stealing narcotics from doctor's offices in the building where he worked.

Detectives said the janitor, Grady Wilson, worked in the downtown Fidelity Medical Building. He admitted taking cocaine for the last two months from doctors offices he entered with the use of a master key. Wilson told police he sold the cocaine for $10 a bottle.

Using Taxi To Chase Gull Proves Costly

The gull, with a fishhook stuck in its beak, has been flying around the seafront for a week. Bovey, an employe of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has been trying to catch the bird and remove the hook.

"Everytime somebody sees it they call us and I speed to the spot in a taxi," said Bovey. "We have spent $7 in taxi fares, but each time the bird has flown."

County League In Full Sway

Six Contests Set Tomorrow

Pickaway County basketball swings into full scale action tomorrow night with six games on tap throughout this area.

Entering cage war for the first time this season will be Ashville, Darby, Jackson, Walnut and Pickaway, all participants in the county six-man football league this year. State athletic rules specify that grid teams are not eligible to start basketball until tomorrow.

Ashville, last year's co-champions, travels to Darby, Williamsport is at Atlanta, Scioto journeys to Jackson, Walnut is at New Holland, Saltcreek invades Pickaway and Carroll entertains Monroe.

The Ashville-Darby contest has all the earmarks of a top battle in the opening game for both teams. Both are rated as pre-season powerhouses in the county loop.

* * *

ANOTHER struggle is predicted between Walnut and New Holland, both teams eyeing the county crown. The Pickaway-Saltcreek tilt also could develop into a rugged contest.

The Williamsport-Atlanta fracas will renew an ancient rivalry between the two neighbor schools and Jackson undoubtedly will be out to down highly-touted Scioto.

Big Ten Grid Statistical Titles Open

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten football championship has gone to Ohio State but major statistical titles still are to be decided in Saturday's finale.

Ohio State's Don Clark, withheld from the Iowa game last week with an injury, will face Michigan's Jim Pace for the scoring crown Saturday. The two halfbacks are tied for the lead with 48 points.

Clark also will have a chance to clinch rushing honors. He leads Wisconsin's fast-coming halfback star, Danny Lewis, 515 to 433 yards entering the final game. Pace also has a chance with 420 yards to his credit.

Lewis and Wisconsin close out against Minnesota Saturday.

Michigan's Jim Van Pelt will bid for passing honors. He is rated second to Michigan State's Jim Ninowski who ended the Big Ten campaign with 29 hits in 48 tosses for 450 yards and 4 touchdowns. Van Pelt has 25 completions out of 53 attempts for 358 yards and 6 touchdowns.

Randy Duncan of Iowa, his conference season over, has clinched total offense honors with 747 yards — 695 from passing. His teammate, end Jim Gibbons, has caught 26 passes for a wide margin in that department.

Ashville Cage Team Seeks Games

The Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Church basketball team is seeking games with teams in this area.

The squad is managed by James H. Morris. He may be contacted by phoning Ashville 4941 after 5 p. m.

The team currently is a member of the Circleville Church league which plays at the armory on E. Franklin St.

Tiger Pilot Sees Hope in 13-Man Swap

DETROIT (AP)—"They're all nice fellows and I hate to see them go. But we never did much while they were here. We're going to go places and you can't go any place standing still."

Manager Jack Tighe made that comment, discussing the 13-player deal made Wednesday by the Detroit Tigers and the Kansas City Athletics.

General Manager John J. McHale says he is ready to make more trades. The Tigers would like to get back Vic Wertz, the heavy-hitting first baseman whom they traded to the old St. Louis Browns in 1952.

In the latest trade, the Tigers lost Bill Tuttle, Frank House, Duke Maas, Jim Small and John Tsitouris and two minor league players to be named later. They received Billy Martin, Gus Zernial, Maury McDermott, Lou Skizas, Tom Morgan and Tim Thompson.

People around Detroit feel the Tigers got the better of the deal. Tighe said, "We did real well."

The five Tigers named in the deal average 24½ years in age. The six players coming to Detroit have an average age of 29½. The Tigers elected not to hesitate, hope and wait two or three years for players who might become front-line major leaguers.

Three IL Games On Tap Tonight

Three Circleville Industrial League basketball games are carded tonight at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The schedule lists Williamsport vs Ashville at 7 p. m., Veterans of Foreign Wars vs Lincoln Plastics at 8:30 p. m. and General Electric vs Amanda at 9:45 p. m.

Hayes Wants Bucks To Be Real 'Mean'

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes is a little worried about the Buckeyes' chances against Michigan Saturday. He's distressed because his men are happy.

They're too happy, he told a Quarterback Club meeting here Wednesday.

"Football isn't a happy game," the coach said. "You have to be mean, and that's the way I want my team on Saturday—mean."

Hayes told the meeting that halfback Don Clark may see only limited duty against the Wolverines in the regular season finale at Ann Arbor.

Notre Dame Center Gets Lineman Honor

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—A bench warmer was the role that senior center Frank Kuchta emerged from to spearhead a stunning 7-0 Notre Dame upset of Oklahoma and win Associated Press Lineman of the Week honors.

For his terrific offensive and defensive play that shattered Oklahoma's 47-game winning skein, Kuchta gained the nod from the weekly AP poll of sports writers.

Kuchta, whose home is in Cleveland, said he was "tremendously excited" over his selection.

"Why, I haven't played a whole game or a major part of it for some time. I understand I played about 45 minutes in my first starting assignment all year last Saturday," he asserted.

Jackie La Bua, Jamaica, N. Y., middleweight, was a swimmer in high school.

Midwest Grid Expert Says Bucks To Lose

Prognosticator Also Tags Notre Dame for Defeat by Iowa '11'

By JERRY LISKA
Midwest AP Sports Editor

CHICAGO (AP)—The old Midwest football prognosticator steps up for his final turn at bat with a 46-14-1 record and a .767 average:

Iowa 14, Notre Dame 7—On the theory that the Hawkeyes, burning after "squandering" the Big Ten title to Ohio State, will make the fur fly in their season finale. The Irish got a tremendous lift from snapping Oklahoma's 47-game winning streak, but now they're back where football life is real. Notre Dame still has two games after Iowa, against Southern California and Southern Methodist.

Michigan 14, Ohio State 13—With or without Don Clark, the Buckeyes will be sand-bagged on their way back from the bank. The only other conference game Ohio State played away from the encouraging roar of the home folk was at Wisconsin. The Bucks had trouble nipping the Badgers, 16-13. This time, the mob will be howling for the Wolverines. Michigan's Jim Pace and Clark could hook up in a dazzling ball-carrying due. The Wolves know about Bob White.

Wisconsin 19, Minnesota 13—The Badgers have plenty of speed, something that has bothered the Gophers all year. Minnesota bowed to Michigan State 42-13 last week. Three weeks ago, the Badgers lost to MSU 21-7. Last week, Wisconsin thumped Illinois 24-13. It was Illinois, on Oct. 19, which started the Gophers reeling, 34-13.

Illinois 21, Northwestern 14—The Wildcats will desperately attempt to avert their ninth straight defeat and a winless season. However, Illinois has been able to move the ball with ease despite an erratic campaign.

Purdue 20, Indiana 7—The Boilermakers hold the season's only decision over the No. 1 team in the AP poll, Michigan State. This is the traditional Old Oaken Bucket rivalry in which the form sheet usually gets torn to shreds. But unless the Hoosiers show up with brass knuckles and bear traps, Purdue grabs the moss-covered pail.

Michigan State 40, Kansas State 12—The Spartans will be out to wrap up their No. 1 rating in the AP standings. MSU isn't happy about its six-game Big Ten schedule compared with Ohio State's seven-game card. The Bucks, who did not play MSU, have the conference crown and Rose Bowl bid even if Michigan spills them Saturday.

Marquette 14, Arizona 6—The Warriors snap their 19-game losing streak in a battle of have-nots. Both teams are winless this season, Marquette with an 0-9 mark and Arizona with 0-7-1.

Looking ahead:

Nov. 30—Notre Dame 19, Southern California 7 — The Trojans ain't what they used to be.

Dec. 7—Notre Dame 20, Southern Methodist 20 (tie)—This game is at Dallas where the temperature and scoring will be high.

Rose Bowl—Ohio State 38, Oregon 14—The Buckeyes say Happy New Year with touchdowns.

County League In Full Sway

Six Contests Set Tomorrow

Pickaway County basketball swings into full scale action tomorrow night with six games on tap throughout this area.

Entering cage war for the first time this season will be Ashville, Darby, Jackson, Walnut and Pickaway, all participants in the county six-man football league this year. State athletic rules specify that grid teams are not eligible to start basketball until tomorrow.

Ashville, last year's co-champions, travels to Darby, Williamsport is at Atlanta, Scioto journeys to Jackson, Walnut is at New Holland, Saltcreek invades Pickaway and Carroll entertains Monroe.

The Ashville-Darby contest has all the earmarks of a top battle in the opening game for both teams. Both are rated as pre-season powerhouses in the county loop.

* * *

ANOTHER struggle is predicted between Walnut and New Holland, both teams eyeing the county crown. The Pickaway-Saltcreek tilt also could develop into a rugged contest.

The Williamsport-Atlanta fracas will renew an ancient rivalry between the two neighbor schools and Jackson undoubtedly will be out to down highly-touted Scioto.

Big Ten Grid Statistical Titles Open

CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten football championship has gone to Ohio State but major statistical titles still are to be decided in Saturday's finale.

Ohio State's Don Clark, withheld from the Iowa game last week with an injury, will face Michigan's Jim Pace for the scoring crown Saturday. The two halfbacks are tied for the lead with 48 points.

Clark also will have a chance to clinch rushing honors. He leads Wisconsin's fast-coming halfback star, Danny Lewis, 515 to 433 yards entering the final game. Pace also has a chance with 420 yards to his credit.

Lewis and Wisconsin close out against Minnesota Saturday.

Michigan's Jim Van Pelt will bid for passing honors. He is rated second to Michigan State's Jim Ninowski who ended the Big Ten campaign with 29 hits in 48 tosses for 450 yards and 4 touchdowns. Van Pelt has 25 completions out of 53 attempts for 358 yards and 6 touchdowns.

Randy Duncan of Iowa, his conference season over, has clinched total offense honors with 747 yards — 695 from passing. His teammate, end Jim Gibbons, has caught 26 passes for a wide margin in that department.

Ashville Cage Team Seeks Games

The Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Church basketball team is seeking games with teams in this area.

The squad is managed by James H. Morris. He may be contacted by phoning Ashville 4941 after 5 p. m.

The team currently is a member of the Circleville Church league which plays at the armory on E. Franklin St.

Notre Dame Center Gets Lineman Honor

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—A bench warmer was the role that senior center Frank Kuchta emerged from to spearhead a stunning 7-0 Notre Dame upset of Oklahoma and win Associated Press Lineman of the Week honors.

For his terrific offensive and defensive play that shattered Oklahoma's 47-game winning skein, Kuchta gained the nod from the weekly AP poll of sports writers.

Kuchta, whose home is in Cleveland, said he was "tremendously excited" over his selection.

"Why, I haven't played a whole game or a major part of it for some time. I understand I played about 45 minutes in my first starting assignment all year last Saturday," he asserted.

Tiger Pilot Sees Hope in 13-Man Swap

DETROIT (AP)—"They're all nice fellows and I hate to see them go. But we never did much while they were here. We're going to go places and you can't go any place standing still."

Manager Jack Tighe made that comment, discussing the 13-player deal made Wednesday by the Detroit Tigers and the Kansas City Athletics.

General Manager John J. McHale says he is ready to make more trades. The Tigers would like to get back Vic Wertz, the heavy-hitting first baseman whom they traded to the old St. Louis Browns in 1952.

In the latest trade, the Tigers lost Bill Tuttle, Frank House, Duke Maas, Jim Small and John Tsitouris and two minor league players to be named later. They received Billy Martin, Gus Zernial, Maury McDermott, Lou Skizas, Tom Morgan and Tim Thompson.

People around Detroit feel the Tigers got the better of the deal. Tighe said, "We did real well."

The five Tigers named in the deal average 24½ years in age. The six players coming to Detroit have an average age of 29½. The Tigers elected not to hesitate, hope and wait two or three years for players who might become frontline major leaguers.

Three IL Games On Tap Tonight

Three Circleville Industrial League basketball games are carded tonight at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

The schedule lists Williamsport vs Ashville at 7 p. m., Veterans of Foreign Wars vs Lincoln Plastics at 8:30 p. m. and General Electric vs Amanda at 9:45 p. m.

Hayes Wants Bucks To Be Real 'Mean'

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes is a little worried about the Buckeyes' chances against Michigan Saturday. He's distressed because his men are happy.

They're too happy, he told a Quarterback Club meeting here Wednesday.

"Football isn't a happy game," the coach said. "You have to be mean, and that's the way I want my team on Saturday—mean."

Hayes told the meeting that halfback Don Clark may see only limited duty against the Wolverines in the regular season finale at Ann Arbor.

Midwest Grid Expert Says Bucks To Lose

Prognosticator Also Tags Notre Dame for Defeat by Iowa '11'

By JERRY LISKA
Midwest AP Sports Editor

Iowa 14, Notre Dame 7—On the theory that the Hawkeyes, burning after "squandering" the Big Ten title to Ohio State, will make the fur fly in their season finale. The Irish got a tremendous lift from snapping Oklahoma's 47-game winning streak, but now they're back where football life is real. Notre Dame still has two games after Iowa, against Southern California and Southern Methodist.

Michigan 14, Ohio State 13—With or without Don Clark, the Buckeyes will be sand-bagged on their way back from the bank. The only other conference game Ohio State played away from the encouraging roar of the home folk was at Wisconsin. The Bucks had trouble nipping the Badgers, 16-13. This time, the mob will be howling for the Wolverines. Michigan's Jim Pace and Clark could hook up in a dazzling ball-carrying due. The Wolves know about Bob White.

Wisconsin 19, Minnesota 13—The Badgers have plenty of speed, something that has bothered the Gophers all year. Minnesota bowed to Michigan State 42-13 last week. Three weeks ago, the Badgers lost to MSU 21-7. Last week, Wisconsin thumped Illinois 24-13. It was Illinois, on Oct. 19, which started the Gophers reeling, 34-13.

Illinois 21, Northwestern 14—The Wildcats will desperately attempt to avert their ninth straight defeat and a winless season. However, Illinois has been able to move the ball with ease despite an erratic campaign.

Purdue 20, Indiana 7—The Boilermakers hold the season's only decision over the No. 1 team in the AP poll, Michigan State. This is the traditional Old Oaken Bucket rivalry in which the form sheet usually gets torn to shreds. But unless the Hoosiers show up with brass knuckles and bear traps, Purdue grabs the moss-covered pail.

Michigan State 40, Kansas State 12—The Spartans will be out to wrap up their No. 1 rating in the AP standings. MSU isn't happy about its six-game Big Ten schedule compared with Ohio State's seven-game card. The Bucks, who did not play MSU, have the conference crown and Rose Bowl bid even if Michigan spills them Saturday.

Marquette 14, Arizona 6—The Warriors snap their 19-game losing streak in a battle of havenots. Both teams are winless this season, Marquette with an 0-9 mark and Arizona with 0-7-1.

Looking ahead:

Nov. 30—Notre Dame 19, Southern California 7 — The Trojans ain't what they used to be.

Dec. 7—Notre Dame 20, Southern Methodist 20 (tie)—This game is at Dallas where the temperature and scoring will be high.

Rose Bowl—Ohio State 38, Oregon 14—The Buckeyes say Happy New Year with touchdowns.

Mississippi Once Sleeping Giant Awakening

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Association
Correspondent

ST. LOUIS—Labor and industry are looking very kindly at the Mississippi River these days — up and down its 1,839 miles of navigable channel. There is a reason: shipping booms, and that means men at work. Towboats are busy as far as the channel is assured—and that's from Minneapolis to New Orleans.

Back in 1900, Lyle Saxon wrote a very nostalgic book, "Father Mississippi," in which he viewed 1859-1860 as the peak year of river traffic. From then until 1900, he wrote, traffic had never equalled the 2,187,560 tons unloaded at New Orleans docks that year.

Too bad Saxon didn't wait a few years with his book, to see how wrong were his views! When the towboat replaced the old packet, the upswing was slow but steady. The curve is still pointing upward.

Thirty years ago, the port of New Orleans chalked up 15 million tons of freight; tonnage rose to 20 million in 1941. It doubled by 1954, and in 1955, the last year of which figures are available, it soared to 47 million tons. It's a conceded fact that 1956 and this year will show even higher tonnage.

NOW NEARING completion on the Illinois side of the Mississippi at East St. Louis is a huge coal-loading dock being built by Peabody Coal company to handle the output of its new River King mine in southern Illinois, coal of which will be shuttled to dockside by an 18-mile electric railroad, then shipped up and down river to the many utilities the coal company services.

This dock, 2,500 feet long, 70 feet high, stretching out for half a mile north of MacArthur bridge, will handle 1,200 tons of coal an hour. All of this huge tonnage will go up and down the long river on barges. With a guaranteed channel, due to the many locks now controlling the river, barge traffic is a 12-months-a-year certainty from Minneapolis to the Gulf.

Small freighters from the Caribbean and South America have docked at St. Louis recently, and it won't be long until blue water ships will be a daily occurrence on the muddy Mississippi, river men predict. Right now the tugboat is supreme. And don't think it isn't a modern boat!

A century ago, it was quite stylish to take a trip on the river. However, generally, the passenger came ashore with a few lice and badly needing a bath. Today, even the tugboat is spic and span, with air-conditioning, radar, television for the crew, and chow that is comparable to the best.

The radar-equipped towboat (left, foreground) has brought this tow from the eastern seaboard to St. Louis.

These boats can push through fog without fear because of radar. They can push barges a half mile long, the equivalent of a trainload of fuel oil, coal, or autos. Their Diesel motors are huge, pushing their tows 15 miles an hour downriver, and one-third that fast bucking the current. They sit like contented ducks in the water and look as if a good sized wave would founder them. But it rarely happens.

It's a romantic life—and an adventurous one. Once in a while accidents do happen. Several years ago an automobile tow broke loose in a storm on the Ohio river near Evansville, Ind., and 157 new Chrysler-built cars went down in the drink. However, this is rare.

The Mississippi (1,839 miles of navigable stream); the Ohio (981); the Tennessee (650); the Illinois waterway (350); the Cumberland river (327); the Kentucky (259); the Columbia (218), and a dozen lesser streams, canals and inter-coastal routes make a giant network of waterways channeling the U. S. that is fast skyrocketing to the top as a means of transportation for all types of material.

Petroleum, coal, autos, grain, building industry, chemical industry, aluminum industry, cement industry—all feed immense tonnage to these inland towboats that save industry money.

DOZENS AND dozens of different unions are involved in manning this giant inland fleet. The Mississippi is the four-lane highway of them all. No wonder labor looks kindly upon its development.

There is still another facet of industrial gain closely associated with increased river traffic — new industries setting up on the shores of dozens of these navigable rivers. Many cities, too, are building modern river-rail-truck terminals and other shipping centers that feed from the river traffic.

The towboat-and-barge is a big, new link from inland U. S. to the high seas, a new facet in our economy. The river days of Mark Twain's time are over!

End of an Era

GENESEE DEPOT, Wis. (AP) — The tiny community of Genesee Depot, once one of the country's busiest railroad shipping centers for farm products, may have to change at least part of its name. The Milwaukee Road has closed and put the building up for sale.

Sydney, founded in 1788, is the oldest city in Australia.

Whoopers Due For Honors

New Postage Stamp To Feature Cranes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The U.S. Post Office Department formally unveils its tribute to the whooping crane Friday while embattled protectors of the big bird still have something to whoop about.

But not much. There are only 31 whooping cranes alive today, and that is the most since 1950.

Last spring 21 wild whoopers started their perilous 2,000-mile journey from the Gulf Coast to the summer breeding ground in northwestern Canada.

By this week, 26—including four young birds—had returned to the Arkansas Refuge near Corpus Christi, Texas.

The captive population includes Rosie, a resident of the San Antonio zoo; Crip and Josephine, the pair that this year brought off a successful hatch of two chicks at the New Orleans zoo, and a couple of unidentified birds who decided the heck with traveling and stayed at Arkansas instead of flying north last spring. There was a third one in this group, but he passed away in the process of being caught as a bridegroom for Rosie.

The Post Office Department's memorial is a three-cent item, fourth in a series of wildlife conservation stamps. It is a blue, green and yellow stamp showing a female whooper bending attentively over two downy youngsters while a male bird stands guard nearby.

An initial printing of 100,000,000 of the new stamps was authorized.

Those who want what the stamp collectors call a first cover can mail self-addressed but unstamped envelopes, with remittances by money order, to the postmasters at New Orleans, Corpus Christi or New York.

Each of these offices will provide distinctive cancellations on the whooper stamps Nov. 22.

Cub Scout Pack 205 Meeting Features Thanksgiving Skit

The November meeting of Cub Scout Pack 205 was opened with the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag led by Cubmaster Joe Bell.

Den 2 under the leadership of Mrs. Milton Patterson and assisted by Mrs. Jack Clifton, presented a Thanksgiving skit featuring the contribution of the Indians to the First Thanksgiving. The narration was supplied by Mrs. Patterson. Cubs participating were John Bowers, Jeff Clifton, Thomas Goeller, Gary Hartman, Terry Hull, Brad Marshall, Jack Varble and Kip Patterson.

Charles Smith announced that the December Pack meeting would be December 18 at which time a carolling party would be the program.

Mrs. Edward Grigg explained a display of projects used by the Cubs to fulfill the requirements needed to earn awards. This display was made to acquaint new Cubs and parents with Cub activities. Some of the projects were the development of the flag, outdoor skills, collections, scrap books, useful crafts, family fun and party planning.

At the roll call, Mrs. Patterson's den was awarded the attendance trophy. Mrs. Grigg's den was runner-up.

THE AWARDS for the month were made by the Den Mothers with one of the child's parents making the presentation. Bobcat pins were awarded by Mrs. Patterson to Terry Hull, Tom Goeller, Brad Marshall, John Bowers, Gary Hartman, Jeff Clifton, Jack Varble, and Kip Patterson. Mrs. Merle Turner awarded Bobcat pins to Eddie Arnold, Dale Reinhard, Tom Nolan, Robert McClarren and Michael Turner. Mrs. Grigg awarded Roy Strawser a Gold Arrow for his Wolf Badge. The Cubs then led their parents in some songs and the meeting was concluded by the Cub Master's benediction.

All leaders are urged to attend the Scouters Roundtable at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House on December 5.

Pack 205 will hold the January meeting at the regular time with Den 1 in charge of the program, under the leadership of Mrs. Merle Turner and Miss Janet Carr. Miss Carr was introduced to the group as a new member of the Pack.
